NEW STATE RULES ADOPTED TO CURB 'EASY CLEMENCY'

Henceforth, Courts Will Be Informed When Pardon or Parole Application is Made and Heard.

Governor Rivers and members of the State Prison and Parole Board yesterday reached an agreement with the Fulton county grand jury on new rules which they hope will curb easy clemency for repeating criminals.

The action was the result of a two-hour closed-door conference, with all conferees agreeing upon the following:

Before hearing a petition for a pardon, the Governor will notify the solicitor of the court in which the prisoner was convicted that a pardon application has been filed.

Will Reveal Pardons.
If a pardon is granted, the Governor will notify the solicitor of the action.

The prison and parole board will notify the solicitor if it contemplates granting a parole before such action is taken.

The notifications were agreed upon in order that prosecuting officials and court attaches may have ample opportunity to resist pardons and paroles for unworthy applicants. While the Fulton county grand jury initiated the movement and secured the agreement of the state officials the new procedure will be state-wide in its application.

Governor Rivers outlined the new procedure, taken to eliminate criticisms of pardons and paroles issued without the knowledge of prosecuting officials. He said in the future hearings would be on an average of at least 30 days from the time notifications reach solicitors of courts in which prisoners have been convicted.

Foreman Law Pleased.

Thomas C. Law, foreman of the Fulton county grand jury, who accompanied a special subcommittee, headed by John A. Burgess, praised the "co-operative action." He said the simple plan will eliminate much of the criticism and "is a movement which will be beneficial to society in that it will be another safeguard against ill-advised actions."

"We are highly pleased and gratified by the fine spirit of co-operation given us," Law said, and I hope we have the same co-operation from trial judges who suspend sentences and give prisoners probation."

Rivers announced that a special clerk will be employed in his office to handle the details of the work, but that savings in other expense will compensate for her salary.

In explaining the various forms of clemency, Governor Rivers pointed out that the State Prison

Jacqueline Cochran Claims Error Made in Timing Flight

Aviatix Says Officials Failed to See Her Cross Finish Line.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Jacqueline Cochran said last night she believed a mistake had been made in timing her 1,000-kilometer measured course flight—a round trip from Burbank to San Mateo—last Saturday.

She contends she made the flight in one hour, 59 minutes. She was officially timed at 2 hours, 53 minutes, 30 seconds, averaging a scant 214 miles an hour.

National aeronautic timers sighted her over San Mateo, the 500-kilometer mark, and credited her with 58 1-2 minutes, or 320 miles an hour. She says she made the return trip in 60 1-2 minutes, but timers at Burbank did not see her as she crossed the finish line at 14,700 feet altitude.

Miss Cochran explained that, having the advantage of this altitude, she climbed on to 19,000 feet for some altitude instrument tests over Long Beach and Malibu and did not return to Burbank until 54 1-2 minutes later, at about 7,000 feet.

Miss Cochran said she would petition the Aeronautic Association to recognize the first half of her flight as a 500-kilometer record and disregard the second half.

PAPER-BAG BANDIT SHOOTS WAY FREE

Robs Woman and Escort on Peachtree, Fires at Pursuers in Automobile.

Atlanta's "paper-bag" bandit with the nickel-plated revolver chucked up another holdup last night and made a successful getaway after firing at a pursuing automobile.

Victims were Miss Catherine Butts and Henry Waggoner, both of 592 Page avenue. They told police they were just getting in their car at Fifth and Peachtree streets shortly after midnight when a negro stepped from behind a tree and demanded "their money."

The bandit snatched Miss Butts' handbag, took a wallet from Waggoner containing $45 and fled down Peachtree street. Waggoner hailed a passing car and tried to overtake the fleeing bandit. The negro turned west on Sixth street and as the car drew close to him, he fired upon his pursuers and then disappeared down Cypress street.

In his flight he dropped Miss Butts' handbag which Waggoner recovered. It was the sixth holdup during the past week which police believe were perpetrated by the same man.

An attempted holdup at the Capitol theater was thwarted but he obtained varying sums of money at the negro box office of the Fox theater, a grocery store on Auburn avenue, the Rhodes Center liquor store and another liquor store on Whitehall street.

BRITISH NOTE MOLLIFYING TO GERMANY

Fuehrer Explains Reich Attitude Orally at Some Length to Henderson; Calls in Italian Envoy.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER.

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler's answer to the British formula to prevent war over Poland was handed to British Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson in the Reich's chancellery tonight.

The ambassador, who brought the British proposals from London yesterday, remained with Hitler 25 minutes. It was reported in informed quarters that, in addition to handing over the German note which the Fuehrer and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop drafted carefully today, Hitler explained Germany's attitude orally at some length.

Reply Kept Secret.

What the German reply was to British proposals remained a profound secret, but hints from informed quarters and the more optimistic attitude of everyone in the German chancellery and foreign office indicated that the way was open for further negotiation.

It was reliably reported that the British communication was, from the German point of view, "conciliatory and far reaching," and that the German view now was that the Reich had everything to gain by continuing the discussions.

Henderson left the chancellery, presumably to make an immediate report to London.

Chamberlain Given Note.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, of Great Britain, earlier in the day had been given Hitler's general and informally stated views in a note which the Fuehrer dispatched to London by plane before the final draft of the Reich's reply had been formulated.

Immediately after seeing Henderson tonight Hitler called for the Italian ambassador to Germany, Bernardo Attolico, who remained in the chancellery 15 minutes.

It was presumed that the Fuehrer's axis partner, Benito Mussolini, was being informed of each step of the negotiations.

Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, Undersecretary of State Friedrich Wilhelm Gaus, and other advisers of the Fuehrer were closeted with Hitler from late forenoon into the evening while the reply was being drafted.

'Absolute Discretion' Maintained.

Under strict agreement between London and Berlin, officials said, "absolute discretion" would be maintained as to the contents of both the British note of last night and the German reply.

This much, however, was divulged: That the Hitler response would not close the door to further negotiations.

The Poles, however, are not in on these negotiations as far as Berlin is concerned.

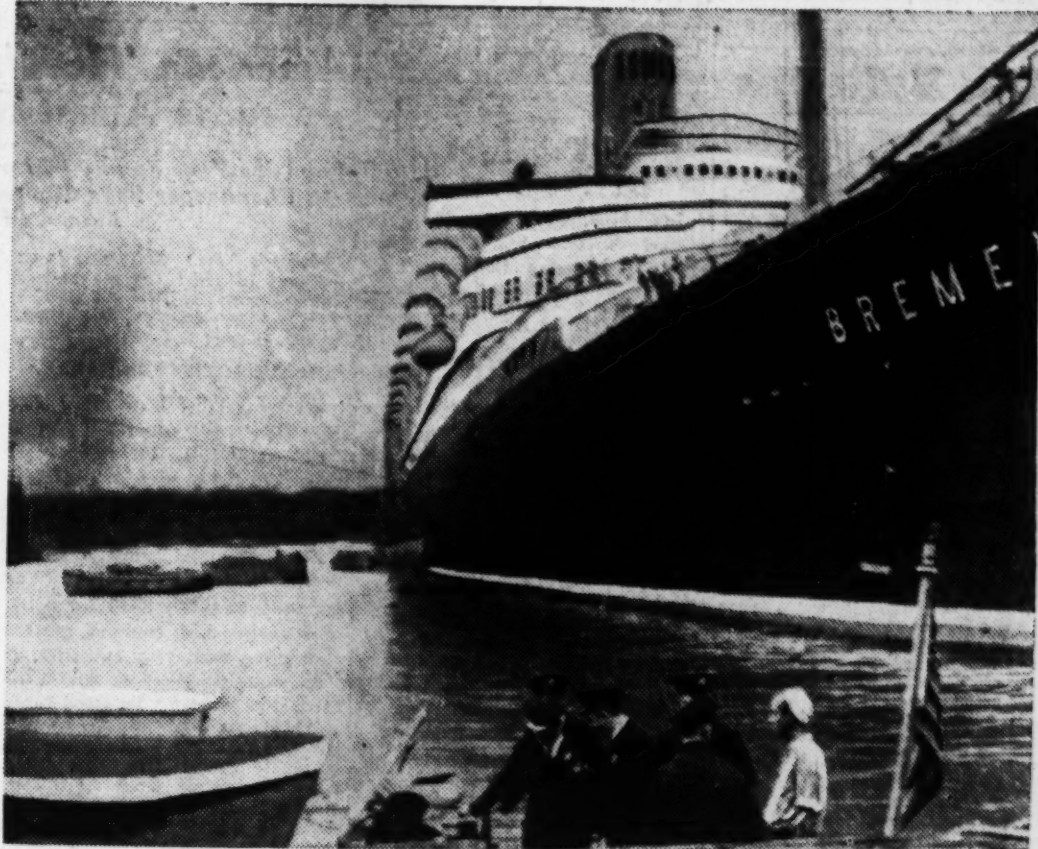

The Polish ambassador in Berlin is not in contact with the German government nor is the German ambassador in Warsaw in contact with the Polish government, it was officially stated.

Polish Position Unknown.
If, therefore, the Poles are agreeable to the plan of crisis solution on which Chamberlain is working, they are not making their position known directly to the German government.

Pessimists among political observers believed, in fact, that the Poles might yet form a stumbling block to the joint efforts of Chamberlain and Hitler.

The official view here tonight

U.S. DETAINS SHIPS FOR ARMS SEARCH

German, British, French Liners Held Up in N. Y.; Roosevelt Tells Why.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The collector of the port of New York tonight ordered the German liner Bremen, the Normandie of the French Line and the British Aquitania and Transylvania to remain at their Hudson river piers "pending a search by customs officers satisfactory to me."

The big German ship already had been subjected to a day-long search and held many hours beyond her scheduled 6 a. m. (Atlanta time) sailing time—a detention which a North German Lloyd Line official said had prompted the German embassy in Washington to protest to the State Department.

Collector Harry Durning's order followed by only a few hours the statement of President Roosevelt that the Bremen will start afresh in the morning and that the other ships will be searched simultaneously. Delay in the sailing of the Normandie, scheduled to leave at 9 a. m., and the Aquitania, due to leave at 11 a. m., was likely. The Transylvania was scheduled to leave at 4 p. m.

The collector said he hoped to complete the search before tomorrow night and that 100 customs men were at work on the Bremen

Hitler Note Boosts Demands On Poland, Pertinax Asserts

Fuehrer Believed To Come Very Near to Closing All Doors To Negotiations, He Claims; Nazi Tries To Drive Wedge Between Britain and Poles.

By PERTINAX.

For North American Newspaper Alliance.

PARIS, Aug. 29.—(By Wireless)—About the contents of Chancellor Hitler's reply to Prime Minister Chamberlain's note of Sunday night, the indications available today are not favorable. Hitler is willing to participate in an international discussion bearing upon colonies, raw materials and armaments, as suggested in the British document. But, as regards Poland, he is believed to have come very near to closing all doors, if he has not actually closed them.

In addition, his claims upon Poland are no longer restricted to the retrocession of Danzig and the Polish corridor. They probably include transfer of Polish Upper Silesia to German sovereignty.

Through making such discrimination between the problems which are of general concern and the purely Polish questions, Hitler tries to drive a wedge between Britain and her Polish ally. In the same spirit, last Sunday, he attempted to separate Premier Daladier from the Warsaw government.

Maneuvers Out of Date.

All those maneuvers are quite out of date. The Fuehrer overlooks the fact that, since August 25, the British cabinet has pledged itself, in terms so far-reaching as to baffle all historical parallels, to back Poland against every form of aggression, military, political and economic. He will fail to make any impression upon Chamberlain. The probabilities are that the German note will be published tomorrow night. It may be realized then that Chamberlain

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The New York Herald-Tribune short wave station tonight intercepted British admiralty orders instructing all British merchant vessels to proceed to British ports and leave Italian, German and other waters.

Ships were warned not to visit Italian ports and those in Italy were told to leave. Ships plying the Black sea were ordered to the Sea of Marmara.

A later order instructed vessels on the high seas to open sealed orders

REPLY PUTS 10 DOWNING IN FLURRY

Comment Refused as Chamberlain Discusses It Far Into Night; Commons Given Resume.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier, showing the strain of days of ceaseless French preparations for possible war, said early today, "We will know today where we stand."

"This Hitler," he mused, as he emerged from war ministry conferences. Then, smiling, he added, "what a torrent. His reply to Britain is as voluminous as the note sent to him."

LONDON, Aug. 30.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—The British cabinet was called this morning to study a communication from Adolf Hitler which Prime Minister Chamberlain had indicated might turn the "precarious balance" between peace and war.

The Fuehrer's answer to a statement of the British position, described by the prime minister as not moving "a jot" from support of Poland, was received here late last night amid much activity at No. 10 Downing street.

Study Far Into Night.

There, at the prime minister's residence, Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax studied the German reply until early this morning.

Then leaving the foreign office about 2:30 a. m. (8:30 p. m., Atlanta time Tuesday), Halifax announced a cabinet meeting had been called for later in the morning. He did not give the hour.

There was no immediate comment on Hitler's message.

The prime minister yesterday told the house of commons the issue of peace or war was still undecided, and that upon Hitler's answer "depends whether further time will be given to the exploration of the situation and for the operation of many forces which are working for peace."

Door Still Open.

Informed sources in Berlin said the Fuehrer's message did not close the door to negotiation.

Among the officials who called at Chamberlain's residence while Lord Halifax and the prime minister scrutinized the reply was Sir Horace Wilson, one of Chamberlain's "brain trusters," who figured in last September's crisis negotiations with Hitler.

From shortly before midnight until Halifax left Chamberlain's home, officials were crossing and recrossing the street between the residence and the foreign office carrying papers and documents.

During the period, Sir Robert Vansittart, diplomatic advisor to the government, hurried to the

ROOSEVELT ASSERTS SENATE ADDED TO GRAVITY OF CRISIS

PRESIDENT FLAYS FAILURE TO ENACT NEUTRALITY LAW

Liner Bremen Searched To Make Certain It Is Not Equipped for War Purposes, F. D. R. Says.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—In emphatic tones, President Roosevelt told newspapermen today that the senate's failure to enact his neutrality legislation at the last session of congress was a factor contributing to the gravity of the European crisis.

At the same time, he asserted that the purpose of holding and searching the German luxury liner, the Bremen, was to make certain she could not be equipped at sea for offensive war purposes.

The United States, he said, would be liable to claims for damage inflicted if that happened. He added that the same treatment would be given the merchant ships of all the potential European belligerents.

Dispatches on developments in the European situation poured across the desk of the President and other high officials during the day. In fact, Secretary Hull confessed to newsmen that they had become so voluminous he found it difficult to keep pace with them. Many officials expressed satisfaction that, at least, European diplomacy was keeping the dispute in the talking stage.

Canal Defended.
In the meantime, two steps of a military nature were announced by this government, both having to do with the defense of the Panama Canal. In some quarters it was explained that should war come supporters of one side might conceivably seek to damage the canal to handicap the movements of the other side's merchant shipping. The purpose was to safeguard the big ditch from harm from any quarter.

So, it was announced that military guards would be placed on board all vessels passing through the canal and that the military personnel in the Canal Zone would be increased by 272 officers and 7,860 enlisted men. Troops will begin moving toward the Canal Zone September 2, it was said.

Sought Arms Embargo Repeal.
Mr. Roosevelt's neutrality legislation was intended to repeal the present embargo on the shipment of war supplies to belligerents, thus opening American markets to all nations involved in war, provided they paid cash and took title to their purchases before shipment. In the event of a European war,

London Press Jests in Crisis

LONDON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The London Press, catching its breath during a lull in crisis developments, took a little time out today to poke fun at the situation. The Daily Mail published a cartoon showing a steel-helmeted civilian Meddling Assailed.

On the other hand, Senator Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, said he had seen no indications that senators who opposed the Roosevelt foreign policy in the last session would change their position at the next session.

"I do not believe there should be any repeal of the neutrality law when international conditions are such as they are at present, and I particularly would not want to repeal the law as long as Mr. Roosevelt is President."

"I haven't any confidence in the way the President has been handling the present international situation. His policy has been one of constant meddling."

alone. The search, he added, was "absolutely made for arms and nothing else."

No Guns Found.
Today's search of the Bremen, he said, disclosed no guns—nothing subject to seizure except a camera and an ikon, a Russian religious image, which he stated were not declared on the ship's manifesto.

Durning's orders to the four ships were contained in telegrams to their captains:

"Pending search by customs officers satisfactory to me clearance will not be granted."

Officials of the German line, who said they were advised that Durning was "not fully satisfied with today's search" expressed amazement in view of the all-day scouring of the ship by dozens of customs men.

Ship Officer Fumes.
It was Captain William Drechsel, marine superintendent of the North German Lloyd line, who said the German embassy was protesting to the State Department. Earlier, he denounced the enforced delay as "a very unfriendly act" by the United States.

Agents also watched to make certain that Fritz Kuhn, leader of the pro-Nazi German-American Bund, did not find sanctuary aboard the vessel.

Kuhn himself immediately denied, however, that he had any notion of fleeing this country.

F. D. R. Explains Search.
The primary object of the extraordinary examination given the Bremen—an examination during which the federal steamboat inspection service required the ship to put out her lifeboats to demonstrate the quality of her safety preparations—was explained by President Roosevelt himself in Washington.

At a White House press conference he said inspections would be made of the outgoing liners of all nations which are potential belligerents to determine whether

American 'Hausfrau' in Berlin Learns About Rationing—Quickly

You Give Your Family History To Buy a Bar of Soap! But Shopkeeper Says Capitol Has Huge Reserves of Luscious Foodstuffs.

Editor's Note: Following is an account of what German rationing means to the wife of Frederick C. Oechsner, United Press correspondent in Berlin.

By DOROTHY OECHSNER.

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—(UP)—I have been an American "hausfrau" in Berlin for almost 10 years, but today was the first time I had to give my family history to get a bar of soap.

For a marriage license, a driving license, a dog license—yes. You get used to that. But for a bar of soap—well, I couldn't see the connection with vital statistics.

You see, we received our ration cards this week. Two red-faced little community nurses trudged the hot August pavements from house to house delivering them. I told them we were Americans and half-jestingly asked whether we needed or were entitled to cards.

It's in the Book.
I think they thought I meant American Indians. They looked puzzled, conferred together, and finally consulted the inevitable "Vorschriften" or rules of application, without which you can't open a tin of soup in Germany.

Ex-acted discovery, then proudly: "Yes, look here, it says cards shall be issued without distinction of nationality or race."

So they gave us one each, for my husband, my maid and myself. And a round of telephone calls to friends in the American colony revealed that they had all been similarly favored.

She Tries It Out.

This morning I set out on my usual Monday morning round of shopping, determined to test the efficiency of the rationing system which burst on amazed Germans a little over 24 hours before. I headed for my regular "drogerie," which is the Reich's nearest approximation of our corner drug store. I knew well enough that I wouldn't be able, like the lady in the advertisements, to gaze archly at the shelves and murmur "Send a dozen cakes," but on the they could be armed for offensive purposes.

The Bremen, the pride of the German merchant fleet, had been ordered by Berlin to return home at the earliest possible moment, abandoning her scheduled passenger list, and thus had been made ready to depart around 6 a. m. (E.S.T.).

Ship Official Fumes.

But as the day passed and she still was held fast by a spreading mesh of regulations, Captain William Drechsel, marine superintendent of the owners, the North German Lloyd Line, fumed over his time-tables and asserted the search and enforced delay was "outrageous."

"Nobody knows," he added, why this ship is being held so long. No wonder people abroad feel as they do about certain American acts."

The maneuver to make certain that Kuhn did not leave aboard the Bremen was motivated by the house committee investigating un-American activities, which has the bundle leader under subpoena.

Kuhn Denies Flight Plan.

There was no independent evidence here that he planned to flee and Kuhn himself, reached late in the day by telephone, thus volunteered:

"Yes, so Mr. Dies (the committee chairman) is worrying about me—he thinks I'm running away on the Bremen. Well, I wouldn't run away for a thousand Dies. I like it here very much. I wouldn't feel at home on the Bremen or any other ship."

KUHN WANTED IN QUIZ ON BOND MORALS CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Expressing fear that Fritz Kuhn, of the German-American Bund, might leave the country, the Dies committee asked federal and local authorities at New York today to guard against his departure.

In New York, Kuhn scoffed at the idea that he might flee to Germany. The committee heard testimony concerning William Dudley Pelley, DANZIG, Aug. 29.—(UP)—Neutral observers in Danzig tonight believed that Polish-Danzig friction over local incidents would complicate any negotiations by the major powers. Polish quarters threatened to hold up food trains to Danzig.

POLES ARREST TWO GERMAN CONSULS IN REVENGE

CLASHES CONTINUE UNABATED; NATION ALL BUT CIRCLED

However, Responsible Quarters Deny Rumors That General Mobilization Is Planned Yet.

WARSAW, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Poles tonight received with enthusiasm the address of Prime Minister Chamberlain again affirming British determination to stand by pledges to Poland.

"Once more we have proof that Britain, like Poland and France, is ready to settle all disputes peacefully, but that all these states are firmly decided to remove the danger of future acquisitions," a foreign office spokesman declared.

Reports had spread that general mobilization was likely, but responsible Polish officials late tonight denied such action was contemplated.

Official circles took a "very serious view" of the concentration of German troops in Slovakia, however.

Accept Peace Offers.
The Polish government tonight informed Queen Wilhelmina, of the Netherlands, and King Leopold, of the Belgians, that it would consider their offer towards mediation of the European crisis.

Poland's reply said, however, that no final answer could be made to any mediation proposal pending determination of Germany's attitude.

A late development was the announced arrest of two German consuls, one at Lwow in southeast Poland, and the other at Cieszyn (Teschin) in southwest Poland. Both were brought to Warsaw and delivered to the German embassy.

Retaliatory Action.
It was officially stated that this was in retaliation for the "treatment" given the Polish consul at Marienwerder in East Prussia.

It was charged here that German police occupied the Polish consul's office there for three days and then removed him to Koenigsberg with his entire staff.

Poles declared their borders were further encircled by German troops moving eastward through Slovak areas along Poland's southern frontier.

Overland outlets now remaining to Poland are through the Baltic states, Soviet Russia and a narrow passageway into Rumania.

German troops in the past few weeks have spread along the Polish boundaries to the west and poised in East Prussia on the north.

Bomb Kills 17.

While Poles blamed a new series of subversive acts on Germans, reports received here said 17 persons were killed and 38 injured seriously last night in a time bomb explosion which wrecked the railroad station at Tarnow, in southern Poland.

Officials announced two Germans were arrested at Katowice, the Polish telegraph agency reported, and confessed responsibility for two suitcase bombs which exploded in a German home at Biala, Silesia.

Other reports said Polish anti-aircraft forced back a German airplane flying over Polish territory on the Slovak frontier.

Rationing of gasoline was introduced in Poland for private cars.

BRITISH CABINET IS CALLED TODAY

foreign office and remained for a brief time.

At No. 10 also were R. A. Butler, undersecretary of foreign affairs, and Sir Alexander Cadogan, undersecretary of state.

The prime minister in determined tones had told a cheering host of commoners that Great Britain is "ready for any eventualities" in defense of Poland if need be or peaceful negotiation of the German-Polish quarrel if Adolf Hitler agrees.

Britain's determination to fight at the side of Poland in event of aggression stands firm, the 70-year-old prime minister reiterated, and the issue is squarely up to the German Fuehrer.

"The issue of war or peace is still undecided," he said. "We still hope and will work for peace, but we will not abate any jot of our resolution to hold fast to the lines which we have laid down for ourselves."

Frontier tension must be diminished, he said, as "the first prerequisite" for peaceful negotiation of the quarrel arising out of Germany's demands for Danzig, the Polish Corridor to the Baltic sea and other concessions from Poland.

Downing Street Cleared.
Approximately 100 policemen closed Downing street to the public, driving large crowds to the ends of the short street where the prime minister lives at No. 10. Mounted policemen stood guard at the entrances to the street.

The move was regarded as a precaution to safeguard the prime minister.

Chamberlain's 16-minute address informed the crowded house that there had been little change in the situation since the house met last Thursday, despite the flurry of diplomatic maneuvers, and that the danger of war had not "in any way receded."

The "main points" of the discussions with Hitler, he indicated, were these:

1. Hitler left "no doubt as to the urgency of settling Polish-German questions" but "was concerned to impress upon his majesty's government his wish for an Anglo-German understanding of a complete and lasting character."

2. Britain "would naturally welcome an opportunity of discussing with Germany the several issues" looking toward a "permanent agreement."

3. "Everything turns upon the manner in which the immediate differences between Germany and Poland can be handled and the nature of the proposals which might be made for any settlement."

4. "We have made it plain that our obligations to Poland, cast in formal shape by the agreement signed on August 25th, will be carried out."

5. Britain has repeated that German-Polish differences should be capable of solution by peaceful means and "an equitable settlement" reached by free negotiation.

6. First, however, "tension created by frontier clashes and reports of incidents on both sides of the border, should be diminished."

"Know Duty, and Ready." Lauding British unity, determination and confidence, Chamberlain said the people's "remarkable calm" during the tense period of waiting for Hitler's decision was "due to two things:

"First... none of us have any doubt as to where our duty lies. "Second... we are ready for any eventualities."

In proof of this readiness, the Prime Minister announced the whole British fleet is "now ready at a moment's notice to take up the dispositions (battle stations) which would be necessary in war."

Reviewing in broad outline other measures for "active defense," Chamberlain said air raid defenses "are in a state of instant readiness."

Speaking almost apologetically for the "inconvenience to the public" of necessary government requisitioning, he nevertheless added, in a caustic reference to Germany, that "at any rate we have not had to begin here by issuing rationing cards."

Chamberlain spoke in measured tones, slow, calm and determined, although he showed signs of strain and occasionally his voice faltered.

Chamberlain Cheered.
He was loudly cheered and many ministers rose when he repeated Britain's determination to stand by Poland.

The opposition spokesmen, Arthur Greenwood for labor and Sir Archibald Sinclair for the Liberals, joined Chamberlain in declaring a united front.

As the prime minister left Downing street for an audience with King George VI, the crowd cheered and a man shouted, "God bless him, God bless old Chamberlain!"

Parliament adjourned until next Tuesday, or earlier, if necessary.

OPTIMISM DIMMED IN VATICAN CIRCLES

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 29.—(UP)—The slight optimism felt here yesterday over the international outlook appeared dimmed today. Pope Pius still was following the situation actively while his representatives abroad were said to be in persistent contact with most capitals in search of a formula for peace.

BRITISH URGE DUCE TO USE INFLUENCE

Mussolini Asked To Advocate Peaceful Solution to Hitler.

ROME, Aug. 29.—(AP)—A British effort to influence Adolf Hitler further toward a peaceable settlement of the European crisis through the good offices of Premier Mussolini was reported in diplomatic circles tonight.

Sir Percy Loraine, British ambassador, had a half hour talk with Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano this afternoon. Neither the British nor the Italians would say what was discussed, but both indicated that Mussolini was acting as an active go-between.

It was believed Sir Percy had suggested that the Italian premier, since he openly shares a desire to avert war, use his powers of persuasion on Hitler to provide London with an acceptable reply to the British government's proposals.

While Hitler's reply was being drafted, according to all indications, with the moderating advice of Il Duce, Italian preparations for possible war went ahead.

The first appeal for Italians to move out of big cities appeared as an air raid precaution and to facilitate food distribution in the event of a conflict.

Food control, without rationing such as that in Germany, was begun in Libya, the Italian territory in north Africa which adjoins French controlled Tunisia. Libya probably would be the scene of fighting in time of war.

Civilians were required to fill out forms, distributed by the police, to show what services they could perform behind the lines.

Electric signs were extinguished in Rome tonight and some stores were lighted with dim blue lamps which already had appeared in the streets and in public conveyances as a defense against air attack.

It was the first complete blackout since the crisis began.

"The moment permits no prophecies and much less optimism," wrote Virginia Gayda, leading editor of the Fascist press, who usually is well informed on government policy.

JAPANESE PREMIER APPOINTS CABINET

General Abe Names General Hata Minister of War.

TOKYO, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The man who commanded Japanese forces in Central China most of last year, General Shunroku Hata, was named minister of war today as the new premier, General Nobuyuki Abe, filled the key posts of his cabinet.

The new government was expected to pursue a moderate course in international affairs but to push ahead vigorously with the undeclared war in China.

The 64-year-old general, who emerged from retirement, surrounded himself with political veterans for the task of restoring domestic unity while avoiding international pitfalls.

Cuts Cabinet Posts.

Apparently at the word of the army, General Abe reduced the number of cabinet posts from 15 to 10 through consolidation of minor ministries.

General Abe announced he himself for the present would retain the foreign affairs portfolio in the new government, which succeeds that of Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma. The Hiranuma government, which maintained close ties with the Rome-Berlin axis, resigned as a result of the signing of the Berlin-Moscow non-aggression pact.

The new government is expected to pursue an isolationist policy. In line with this, authoritative circles believed that the ambassadors to Rome and Berlin, Toshio Shiratori and Major General Hiroshi Cohnami, who had advocated outright military alliance with the axis, would be replaced.

U. S. Envoys to Remain.

The ambassador to the United States, Kensei Horiuchi, was expected to remain at his post. Vice Admiral Zengo Yoshida, commander-in-chief of the combined fleet, was named navy minister. Kazuo Aoki, president of the cabinet planning board, was appointed finance minister. He remains at the head of the planning board.

HITLER INCREASES DEMANDS ON POLES

has nothing to add to what he has said already.

This morning, the King of the Belgians and the Queen of Holland came forward with an offer of their good offices. But their offer, to come to anything, implies that Germany would be willing to meet Poland on equal terms in an international conference or elsewhere and to arrange with her for adjustments of their conflicting interests. That is not so very different from Daladier's and Chamberlain's respective proposals, which have not been acceptable to Hitler.

Duce as Negotiator.
It is rumored tonight in well-informed quarters that Premier Mussolini himself is now ready to endeavor to gather up the broken threads of negotiation. But it can easily be foreseen that his main preoccupation in taking such a step would be to promote fulfillment of his own demands at the expense of the French and British.

An American source would have it that the Duce had even expressed the hope that he would be able to deliver the goods that is a relaxing of the rigorous German program as directed against Poland.

Most competent observers of Italian trends do not conceal their doubts on that point, and besides, it may be emphasized that neither the French nor the British government shows any readiness to put up with a Fascist ransom. On the contrary, they feel that the Duce will work much more sincerely in the interest of peace if he is made aware that the brunt of war would fall upon his country and that, on his part, an equivocal neutrality would not be tolerated.

Mussolini himself must not trust too much in what lies in store for Italy in the immediate future, and according to a reliable source, women and children were ordered today to leave all urban centers.

"AS GRAVE AS EVER."
PARIS PRESS SAYS.
(UP)—This morning's newspapers reported that Adolf Hitler's reply to Britain's proposals regarding Poland was "long and full of strong objections," with Hitler insisting that Germany's demands on Poland be met before other problems are discussed in amicable fashion.

Generally the newspapers considered the situation to be "as grave as ever."

They applauded the firmness of the British Prime Minister's address in parliament yesterday and approved the mediation offer of Queen Wilhelmina, of the Netherlands. Some of the newspapers pretended to "see apprehension" in Italy that Hitler will attempt "some desperate act."

There were long reports of steps the government is taking to suppress Communist activity throughout France.

It was reported that French members of the Inter-Allied Federation of War Veterans appealed to King Victor Emmanuel, of Italy, to attempt mediation of the German-Polish quarrel. Failing mediation, the veterans urged that the Italian king enforce Italian neutrality.

Salvagers Expect Storm To Abate Today for Successful Last Lift.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 29.—(AP)—A southeast storm that kicked up heavy seas tonight delayed surfacing of the submarine Squalus until Thursday morning.

Salvagers predicted the storm would abate during the night and preparatory operations might be completed tomorrow.

Divers today found the Squalus had a 34-degree list to port, 90 feet below the surface, and one of two stern pontoons slightly out of place, but technicians said the pontoon could be shifted easily and the $4,000,000 craft would right herself as she came up.

Salvagers decided upon using two pontoons on the bow also after yesterday's unsuccessful surfacing attempt.

was that "it is to be hoped that reason may yet prevail."

By "reason," however, every commentator means the acceptance of the German viewpoint.

That the Hitler reply will include more than the mere questions at issue with Poland was indicated by the emphasis which commentators laid—with every air of approval—upon Chamberlain's reference to "a wider agreement which would accrue to the lasting benefit of Europe and the world at large."

One unusually well informed source also called attention to the demands put forward by Hitler to Premier Edouard Daladier, of France, as an example of "building bridges for the Poles."

These demands were: The return of Danzig and the corridor, and the cessation of "Macedonian conditions" on the German-Polish border.

Hitler, this source said, had been "especially reasonable" in his letter to Daladier so that a resort to arms might not be necessary.

Earlier, German demands were reported to have included the return of Polish Silesia and the reduction of an emaculated Poland to the virtual status of a protectorate.

While these negotiations were going on, mobilization measures in Germany continued unabated.

One authorized commentator called attention to Chamberlain's statement that the British fleet was ready to take up war positions at any moment.

HITLER AND CHAMBERLAIN SEEK WAY OUT OF WAR CRISIS

NOTE OF OPTIMISM IN BERLIN; TENSION MOUNTS IN POLAND

Two Germans Arrested in Bombing Which Killed 17, Injured 38 in Tarnow; Situation Cited Grave.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Behind the scenes of a European stage set for war, German Fuehrer Adolf Hitler and British Prime Minister Chamberlain sought a way out tonight in further secret diplomatic exchanges.

Hitler handed his latest communication to British Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson tonight after Chamberlain had turned, before a cheering house of commons, that Britain was ready to fight for Poland or to enter "free" negotiation in an atmosphere cleared of the current tension.

Meantime, King Leopold, of the Belgians, and Queen Wilhelmina, of The Netherlands, offered to exert their good offices to mediate the crisis.

France Accepts Offer.

France accepted the mediation offer but Paris officials took so little hope from it and Hitler's reply to Britain that they called the situation "simply stationary."

Welcoming Chamberlain's "firm stand," France continued her war preparations.

There was a note of optimism in Berlin in contrast to growing tension in Poland. Poles asserted German troops were further encircling her borders and two Germans were arrested in connection with a bombing which killed 17 persons and injured 38 at Tarnow, in southern Poland.

Situation Held Grave.

It was stated officially in Warsaw that the situation was so "grave" as a result of the completion of German "mobilization and concentration" on Poland's borders that general mobilization in Poland appeared likely tonight.

Hitler's message was an answer to the British statement of her position which was sent in reply to the German demand for Danzig, the Polish corridor to the Baltic sea, and other concessions.

An informed German source said Hitler's reply would leave the door open for further negotiation and that, without waiting for drafting of the formal reply, Hitler had sent a personal letter to Chamberlain by plane this afternoon. The plane arrived in London after the short meeting of parliament had adjourned until next Tuesday, unless developments necessitate a recall earlier.

Immediately after handing his formal message to Henderson, Hitler conferred with Italian Ambassador Bernard Attolico.

In Rome, British Ambassador Sir Percy Loraine talked with Count Ciano, the Italian foreign minister. There were reports in diplomatic quarters there that Britain was seeking to influence Hitler toward a peaceable settlement through his axis partner, Premier Mussolini, who was indicated as an active peace intermediary.

"The issue of war or peace is still undecided," Chamberlain told the house of commons.

The nature of Hitler's reply, Chamberlain added, would decide whether there would be further time for work toward peace.

Britain to Stand Firm.

But he declared Britain would not move one jot from her position of support for Poland if there is an attack.

Soviet Russia's high command decided to strengthen garrisons on

Text of Chamberlain's Remarks Before Britain's House of Commons

LONDON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The text of Prime Minister Chamberlain's remarks to the house of commons follows:

Since the house met on Thursday there has been little change in the main features of the situation. The catastrophe as I said then is not yet upon us.

I cannot say that the danger of it has yet in any way receded. In these circumstances it might perhaps seem it was unnecessary to ask the house to meet again before the day which had been fixed, but in times like this, we have felt that it was right that the house should be kept informed—as far as possible, continuously informed—of all the developments of the situation as they take place.

That will continue to be the principle which will guide us for further meetings of this house. There is one thing I would like to say at this moment with regard to the press. I think it is necessary once more to urge the press to exercise the utmost restraint, at a time when it is quite possible for a few thoughtless words in a paper not perhaps of particular importance to wreck the whole of the efforts which are being made by the government to obtain a satisfactory solution.

Heard of Account.

I have heard that an account purporting to be a verbatim description of the communication of the British government to Herr Hitler was telegraphed to another country last night or this morning. Such an account could only be an invention from beginning to end. Indeed, I think it is unfortunate that journalists, in the exercise of their profession, should take such liberties upon themselves, responsibilities affecting not only themselves but the inhabitants of the whole world.

I hope it will not be necessary this afternoon to have any long debate. I will attempt to give the house an account of the events of the last few days but of course there has been no change in the policy of the government.

Asked to Call.

Therefore there does not appear to be any necessity for any lengthy discussion. On the day after the house adjourned, that is on Friday, we received information in the course of the morning that the German chancellor had asked the British ambassador in Berlin to call upon him at 1:30 that day.

In the course of the afternoon we were told by telephone that Sir Neville Henderson had had an interview lasting about one hour and a half with Herr Hitler and that he was sending us an account of that interview; that Herr Hitler had suggested to him that it would be a good thing if he were to fly over to this country the next morning in order to give us a verbal and more extended account of the conversation.

We received a record of the interview with our ambassador on Friday evening, and it was not completely deciphered until after midnight. I myself did not see the whole of it until Saturday morning. On Saturday Sir Neville Henderson arrived by airplane from Berlin shortly before lunch.

We understood from him that in Berlin it was not considered to be necessary that he should go back the same day as the German government were anxious that we should give careful study to the communication he would make to us.

Accordingly we devoted the whole of Saturday and Sunday morning to a very careful, exhaustive and thorough consideration of the document which was brought to us and of the reply which we proposed to send back.

and our final answer was taken by the ambassador yesterday afternoon when he flew back to Berlin and delivered it to the chancellery last night.

I should be glad if I could disclose to the house the fullest information as to the contents of the communication exchanged with Herr Hitler but the honorable members will understand that in a situation of such extreme delicacy and when issues so grave hang precariously in the balance it is not in the public interest to publish these communications or comment on them in detail.

I am, however, able to indicate, in quite general terms, some of the main points with which they deal.

Hitler Concerned.

Herr Hitler was concerned to impress upon his majesty's government his wish for an Anglo-German understanding of a complete and lasting character. On the other hand he left his majesty's government in no doubt as to the urgency of settling Polish-German questions.

His majesty's government have also frequently stated their desire to see the realization of such Anglo-German understanding and, as soon as circumstances permit, they would naturally welcome an opportunity of discussing with Germany the several issues, a settlement of which would have to find a place in any permanent agreement.

But everything turns upon the manner in which the immediate differences between Germany and Poland can be handled and the nature of the proposals which might be made for any settlement; for we have made it plain that our obligations to Poland, cast into final shape by the agreement signed on August 25 (Friday last) will be carried out.

Peaceful Means.

But as the house will remember his majesty's government have said more than once publicly that German-Polish differences should be capable of solution by peaceful means. Meanwhile the first prerequisite, if there is to be any chance of useful discussion is that the tension created by frontier clashes and by reports of incidents in the zone of the border, should be diminished.

His Majesty's government accordingly hope that both governments will use their best endeavor to prevent the occurrence of such incidents, the circulation of exaggerated reports, and other activities that might in dangerous inflammation of opinion.

His Majesty's government would hope that if an equitable settlement of Polish-German differences could be reached by free negotiation, this might in turn lead to a wider agreement which would accrue to the lasting benefit of Europe and of the world at large.

At this moment the position is that we are waiting for the reply of Herr Hitler to our communication. On the nature of that reply depends whether further time will be given to the exploration of the situation and for the operation of many forces which are working for peace.

Waiting Period.

A waiting period of that kind is often a very trying one. Nothing, I think, can be more remarkable than the calm which characterizes the attitude of the whole British people. It seems to me that there are two explanations for that happening. The first is that none of us has any doubt as to where our duty lies.

There is no difference of opinion among us. There is no weakening of our determination and the second is our confidence that we are ready for any eventuality. The house may be like to know one or two particulars of the preparations which have been made.

Obviously there are many things which I could not very well say here because they could not be confined to those I see around me. What I say, therefore, must be in somewhat general terms.

Some of the measures which we have to take such as those in connection with requisitioning necessarily must cause some degree of inconvenience to the public. I am confident that the people of the country generally recognize that the nation's need must now be paramount and that they will submit willingly, or even cheerfully to any inconveniences or hardships that may be involved.

No Rationing Cards.

At any rate, we have not had to begin here by issuing rationing cards.

To deal first with the active defense of the country, the air defense of Great Britain has been placed in a state of instant readiness. The ground anti-aircraft defenses have been deployed and are manned by the territorial anti-aircraft units.

The regular squadrons of the Royal Air Force have been brought up to war strength by the addition of the necessary reservists, including a proportion of the voluntary reserve. The fighter and general reconnaissance squadrons of the auxiliary air force have been called up and are standing ready and the balloon barrage is in position.

The observer corps are at their posts. And indeed the whole warning system is ready night and day to be brought into instant operation. The coast defense units are ready and are manned by the coast defense units of the territorial army.

Arrangements have also been made for protection by national defense companies and by militia and by units of the territorial army, of a large number of important points whose safety is essential for the national war effort.

As for the navy, the house will remember that in July last it was announced that the reserve fleet would be called up at the beginning of August in order to take part in combined fleet and air exercises.

For that purpose a number of Soldiers stand guard over a hastily-erected anti-tank barricade on the Danzig border. Both sides of the frontier are covered with such traps and barbed wire entanglements as Poles and Germans feverishly prepare for war.

No War Now, International Trade The Solution, Says Captain Roper

Retired U. S. Navy Officer Firmly Believes Conflict Not Near, With There Being a Strong Possibility of World Peace for the Next 20 Years.

The firm belief that there will be no war now, or possibly for 20 years, is held by Captain W. G. Roper, U. S. N., retired, who finds also that "untrammeled international competition in world trade" is the real avenue to an assured peace. Captain Roper, widely known in the south and particularly in Atlanta, declares:

"There will be no war in Europe this year or next; with a clear probability of 20 years or more of world peace."

"The alliance (it will prove to be one) of Germany and Russia, is a natural and somewhat historical one, the misguided radio inciters and scare-head writers notwithstanding. Germany has the skill and science; Russia the man power and raw materials."

Will Get Danzig.

"Germany will not only get Danzig, but the Polish Corridor, with Poland running the risk of being divided up between Russia and Germany, if she resists the realities of the situation."

"Except for American and home consumption England will make no further encouraging gestures. Poland, a war in Europe would surely involve England, whereby she might lose not only her Chinese possessions and trade, but her Indian empire; all of which means more to her than who dominates the continent of Europe."

"Russia and England are not natural allies. Russia has more than once cast a greedy eye on India."

"If England's record means anything, she will be called up under the provisions of the reserve and auxiliary forces act and as a result the navy was in an advanced state of preparedness when the present crisis arose and the whole of our fighting fleet is now ready at a moment's notice to take the disposition of which would be necessary in war."

A number of other measures have been taken in the past week to increase the strength of our naval preparedness. Naval officers in charge of various commercial ports have been appointed and have taken up their duties, and naval port and base defenses have been put in an advanced state of preparedness.

Control Shipping.

The admiralty has also assumed control of merchant shipping act under the powers conferred upon them by the emergency powers act. Appropriate instructions have already been issued to merchant ships in various routes, to units of the forces and a considerable number of movements have been carried out both at home and overseas. The arrangements for a part of a prearranged plan to insure a greater state of readiness and a number of units could be moved to war stations before the outbreak of war.

The regional commissioners and their staffs are at their war stations. The main responsibility of the organization for civil defense measures rests with the local authorities and instructions have been sent to the local authorities to take preparatory steps so that action could be taken at the shortest notice.

Evacuation Plans.

Plans for the evacuation of school children, mothers and young children, expectant mothers and blind persons from certain congested areas have been evolved. Rehearsals of the arrangements for the evacuation of school children were carried out yesterday and nearly a week ago the local authorities were warned to make arrangements for the extinction of public lights and to prepare the necessary steps to have the lighting extinguished.

Arrangements have also been completed for the calling up at short notice of the personnel of the air-raid precaution services and duty officers will be available. The necessary preliminary steps have been taken to prepare hospitals for the reception of casualties.

I have given these instances of the steps which have been taken over and above the measures which have already been put in operation. Complete surveys have been taken out over the whole range of our defense preparations.

Preparatory measures have been taken in order to insure that precautionary measures, if and when necessary, could be readily given effect to as rapidly as possible.

The issue of peace or war is still undecided. We still hope and will work for peace, but we will not abate any jot of our resolution to hold fast to the lines which we have laid down for ourselves.

PACT RATIFICATION AGAIN POSTPONED

Western Frontier Strengthened as Russia Defers Action on Nazi Agreement.

MOSCOW, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Soviet Russia today further deferred the ratification of the new nonaggression pact with Germany and at the same time decided to strengthen garrisons on the western frontier.

The Soviet grand council, or parliament, was not expected to ratify the nonaggression pact until Friday at the earliest as a result of delays in going through its agenda.

Meanwhile Tass, official news agency, announced that the high command would strengthen the western garrisons because of tension in eastern Europe.

The announcement was made in denying what the agency said were foreign reports that 200,000 or 300,000 Soviet troops had been withdrawn from the western borders and moved eastward to reinforce Soviet frontiers.

The grand council decided that the second item on its agenda, changes in the military service law, would not be considered until Thursday, for which day a joint session of the two houses was called.

Ratification of the nonaggression pact is the third item on the agenda. Most observers thought action was being delayed until the European situation had further clarified.

The council assembled yesterday.

Tomorrow is "Soviet Free Day," or day of rest, and consequently the council is not meeting.

LOBBYING AGAINST ECONOMY GROUP'S PLAN IS CHARGED

Harris Names Highway Chairman in Attack on State Officials Making Campaign Speeches.

By The Associated Press.
Naming the chairman of the Highway Board, House Speaker Roy V. Harris today envisioned legislative agreement on state financing "if state officials would quit making campaign speeches while drawing their salaries from the state and cease lobbying with members of the legislature against the economy committee's plan."

Responding to Governor Rivers' poll of legislators, the Augusta solon referred to a Claxton speech made by Highway Board Chairman W. L. Miller last week. He said Miller stated "he would agree to the economy committee's plan if it were necessary."

"Mr. Miller should know that it is necessary to adopt this plan to carry out your program," Harris continued, "or to pass a sales tax. I believe he knows that the legislature will not pass a sales tax."

The economy plan proposes pegging gasoline tax funds allocated to the Highway Department, counties and the school equalization fund at the June 30, 1938, level and repealing the income tax law provision permitting deduction of federal taxes.

"It grieves me," Harris wrote Rivers, "to know that some of those whom you have appointed to high places of trust and honor are not willing to give up their personal politics and help you finance the program which you advocated when you ran, which they supported and which the people commissioned you to do."

He expressed belief the people generally favored the economy plan, adding "arrayed on the other side are the machinery people, highway contractors and material men."

Appeal To Join Hands.
Harris stated his letter was not intended as a fight on any person, that it was "an appeal to every state official to join hands with us at this time of emergency in solving Georgia's financial problem without the necessity of a sales tax at this time."

At Swainsboro, Senate President John B. Spivey disclosed he planned the first of two caucuses with senators here Thursday, to check settlement on a special session and on what a call should embrace.

"I am meeting about half of them in Atlanta Thursday," Spivey said, "and the others there some time next week."

Durden Blames Talmadge.
From Albany, Senate Floor Leader Adie N. Durden wrote the Governor, "the whole trouble as reflected from replies thus far received as disclosed by the newspapers, is that Eugene Talmadge and his henchmen are using every means possible to defeat the completion of the program for the sole reason of embarrassing you and to promote Talmadgeism."

Representative O. J. Coogler Jr., of Clayton county, suggested a new stat on tax revision to follow the principle: "The tax burden should be placed on the citizens equally and indiscriminately according to their ability to pay and the benefits they derive from the existence of their government."

He said three major taxes would suffice to finance state services upon a "fair and adequate basis" and specified them as follows:
"1. Reduced property tax, and a limitation upon local government agencies as to the amount of their levies."
"2. Revised net income tax, possibly increasing the rate and lowering the bracket."
"3. Gross sales tax of not more than four per cent, no exemptions."

FIREMASTERS SKIP REGULAR SESSION

Not Enough Business To Consider, Chairman States.
The board of firemasters was scheduled to hold its regular monthly meeting last night at fire department headquarters but none was held.

It was the first time in six years that the board has not had enough business to warrant a session, Chairman John T. Marler, chairman for nearly three years and a member for six, recalled.
"Things sure are running smooth right now," he added.

KEN MAYNARD DIVORCED.
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Cowboy Actor Ken Maynard was described as a "nagging and quarrelsome husband" by Mrs. Mary Leeper Maynard today. She was awarded a divorce and $250 a month for life. The Maynards were married 14 years ago.

FARMERS BRINGING DIXIE PROSPERITY

New Yorker Who Traveled Section 20 Years Sees 'Poor South' Passing.

Southern farmers are coming out of their lethargy and bringing with them business prosperity, Fred H. Kury, publisher of the Advance News in Ogdensburg, N. Y., and sales manager of the N. E. A. and Acme Telephoto newspaper services, said yesterday while in Atlanta on a business trip.

"Of the more than 20 years I have been visiting Atlanta and the south I find agriculture and business conditions in better shape now than ever before," he said.
Kury said southern farmers at last have decided they can raise their own livestock rather than import it from the west. He said he was convinced that "the poor south is passing."

Kury operates the Advance News mainly as a hobby. He is a former police reporter who realized his dream of come day owning his own newspaper.
Kury's Advance News is the only Democratic newspaper in New York's strongly Republican upstate section. Furthermore, it was the only daily in that territory to back the New York state milk strike which brought a 50 per cent increase to the farmers. His county of St. Lawrence is the second largest milk-producing county in the United States, he said.

The publisher is a former Washington correspondent for the Scripps-Howard newspapers.

BUILDING CONTRACT IS LET BY REGENTS

New Agriculture Classroom Structure at University To Cost $99,494.

The board of regents yesterday let the contract for building a new agricultural classroom building at the University of Georgia, Athens, to the Southeastern Construction Company, of Atlanta, for $99,494.

Work must begin on the new building by September 5 under specifications laid down by the PWA which is supplying 45 per cent of the cost.
The building is the last in the current program on which application for PWA grants have been made.

Members of the building committee of the regents present at the letting were Marion Smith, and Knox Gholston, of Comer. Also present were R. H. Driftmire, supervising engineer of the University system, and Frank White, representing the PWA.

NYA IN GEORGIA PLANS EXPANSION

Increased Aid for Deserving Students To Feature New Program.
National Youth Administration's plans for Georgia during the new fiscal year center about increased aid to deserving students, enabling them to attend high school and college, and an expansion of resident and local work projects, D. B. Lassiter, state administrator, said yesterday.

Last fiscal year NYA spent more than $900,000 for work projects in Georgia, more than 75 per cent of which went to youth in the form of wages. The remainder was used for materials and supervision, which was greatly supplemented by contributions from project sponsors.

In Fulton county alone, $120,000 was spent for youth labor during the year. Last June, 504 Fulton county young persons between 18 and 24, out of school and unemployed were given work. With an increased congressional appropriation, Lassiter pointed out, NYA activities in the state are expected to increase by approximately 30 per cent.

SENATOR THOMAS SEES NO GENERAL CONFLICT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Senator Thomas, Democrat, Utah, predicted today there would be no general European war, but if one broke out congress would "act impulsively and throw the existing neutrality law out the window."
Thomas, a member of the senate foreign relations committee, talked to reporters after a conference with President Roosevelt. He emphasized he did not discuss European or neutrality questions at the White House.

PUERTO RICANS TO FETE GOVERNOR WINSHIP

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The Puerto Rican trade council announced today it would give a farewell reception here Thursday for Governor Blanton Winship, of Puerto Rico, who will retire on that date after five years at the head of the insular government.

Governor Winship will be succeeded by Rear Admiral William D. Leahy, former chief of naval operations.
Interior Department and territories officials have been invited to the reception. Winship plans to go to his home in Macon, Ga., after his retirement.
New York state's late potato production is estimated at 25,080,000 bushels, or 15 per cent less than the 1934-35 average.

"Lest We Forget"

While the Captains and the Kings debate whether or not they shall go to war, enshrining cruelty, death and gross ugliness, it is well for us to remember that life goes on!

While Adolf Hitler paces his chancellery, shaken with rage and ambition, it is well to recall that in the fields of Georgia there are men ploughing, and in houses women sewing, cooking, and that they are more important to us than Adolf Hitler.

It is well, as the tumult and the shouting rises and falls, to remember that Georgia has schools which will not open; that Georgia has teachers who have done their job and have not been paid; that the treatment of teachers is as shameful a thing as has blotted the history of this state.

It is well to remember that as the wires bring in the message that the House of Commons has cheered Chamberlain's message to Hitler, that Georgia's soil problems are the worst in the nation and demand an intelligent, concerted action by the people.

It should not be forgotten that this morning, as the air bristles with each unchecked fear, there are fathers and mothers planning sacrifices to send their children to school; planning for them something better than they, the parents, have had.

The noise and the din from the capitals of Europe should not drown out the cry of some 6,000 people in Fulton county who are hungry, sick and in need; who wait in relief offices with the dumb, hurt look of cattle.

The tramp of marching feet and the rumble of guns must not drown out the fact that pellagra is on the increase in Georgia; that pellagra is a disease caused by lack of food.

The thunder of engines in the sky must not make us forget that less than a third of Georgia's counties have health departments—that each year too many mothers die giving birth to children; that tuberculosis is a state problem.

The rattle of fixed bayonets in Europe must not silence the cry of the unemployed and the demand for planning which will make the American way of life better for all.

The rumble of armaments factories must not overcome the appeal from the boys and girls of the farms of Georgia for a place and a chance in the world.

The most important thing in the world is not Adolf Hitler or his decision, but our own schools, children, workers, men and women who must here build a better world if the world and the plain, simple, dignities of human life are to survive.

And so, while the world waits the reply of the Captains and the Kings; while innocent peoples live and wait in terror for the sound of guns and of planes, we can remember our own tasks and, in the turning to them perhaps find the answer to something the world has missed, and needs. And pray:

"Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget: Lest we forget."

The Age of Speed? Hardly!

Man—good old proud, egotistical man—struts his brief hour and feels mighty well pleased with himself and his accomplishments. Especially is this true in the matter of speed, his shattering of time and space on land and on sea, and in the air. Then along comes a Harvard University biologist with a lot of big talk about insects and their speed. Hm-mm! Man, quite the fellow that he is, and thinks he is—kin to the angels and all that—gets something of a rude shock in the centers of his ego. The insects, it seems, make man's speeds look a little less than ridiculous and a little more than slow motion.

Take a look at the findings of the Harvard man, the eminent Dr. Leigh E. Chadwick, who has been researching, among other things, into the wing-beat of the common housefly. The doctor, it must be interjected at this point, has been studying "this extraordinarily rapid physical exercise which has no counterpart at all among mammalian animals." Using a camera which takes 600 pictures a second, Dr. Chadwick recently "clocked" the wing-beats of such critters as dragon flies, grasshoppers and bumblebees. What did he learn? Well, sir, the bumblebee hit 240 beats a second; the honey bee ranged from 160 to 220 beats a second, and the fruit fly pegged along at 216 beats a second. Speedy also was the house fly, with 160 beats of his wings per second. But the hummingbird, which humans have long regarded as a fast flutterer, only did 50 beats a second.

But even the slowest among the doctor's insects were way ahead of mice and men. Using comparisons, Dr. Chadwick disclosed that a trumpet player can flutter his tongue over the instrument's mouthpiece only 10 times a second; a piano player could only trill one key about as fast, and a mouse could only wiggle a leg 20 times a second.

Professor, it is cricket to disillusion us like that? We thought this was the speed demon phase of human history.

One Result of War

Paradoxically, one of the most important reasons given by the Japanese for their ambitions on the mainland of Asia—relief from the ever-rising pressure of over-population at home—has retarded population growth in a manner not anticipated at the beginning of the China "incident." So worried government authorities are offering bonuses to women who present their country with more than 10 children.

The normal birth rate in Japan in recent years has been between 2,000,000 and 2,250,000 babies annually. The net population increase, determined by deducting deaths from births, has averaged 900,000. In 1938, however, it has now been discovered, the birth rate declined by some 230,000 and was 210,000 below the average of the last decade. At the same time the death rate increased, resulting in a population increase of only 668,000 instead of the customary 900,000. Such are the census figures.

This does not take into consideration the actual casualties of war at the front, presumably considered by the authorities as too sacred to be reduced to cold statistics. If this angle had been taken into account it is doubtful if the population gain would have registered as much as a half million. Deaths have been given out by the government as only 60,000 in the China incident although there is reason for believing 200,000 would be more accurate.

Changed conditions behind the lines in a country engaged in modern warfare, even to a limited extent as in Japan and far removed from the actual sphere of conflict, completely upsets the normal processes. One million Japanese soldiers are reported to be absent in China, alone, while millions of women have been removed either wholly or partly from their customary positions in life to surplanted men in factory, mine and field.

Civilization and all the people of the world who contribute to the making of it would suffer a cruel, staggering blow in the event of a general outbreak. Every normal process would be disrupted, normal human impulses cease, in a world-wide co-operative effort to destroy life.

Bank Deposit Insurance

Every day the wisdom of the law creating the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, insuring the nation's bank depositors against loss up to $5,000, becomes more evident. For those unfortunate enough to have deposited their funds in insolvent or unsound banks a new record was set for payment during the first half of 1939.

Insurance checks totaling $64,000,000 went to 350,138 depositors in 48 banks scattered throughout the country. Naturally this huge amount was not a total drain on the corporation's assets. The insolvent banking institutions, while unable to continue payments in cash to depositors, had assets to be liquidated. In many instances the good influences of the corporation were brought to bear in merging "frozen" concerns with going banks with beneficial effects all around.

As of June 30, the deposit insurance corporation's surplus amounted to more than $135,000,000. Its income during the first six months of the year totaled $25,748,000, while expenses and losses came to $22,292,000.

Some 300 banks have been merged or closed since the corporation was authorized by congress. Ninety-seven per cent of 840,277 depositors have been paid in full on their deposit losses.

It would be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to find opposition to the deposit insurance law among the people. Once the thousands of weak banks were weeded out at the beginning and the losses taken—losses which were without doubt impossible to forestall under the then existing circumstances—failures have been few and far between. Reimbursement of 97 per cent of these depositors is a far cry from the days when the depositors took the loss completely and without recourse.

Naturalists, dredging the Gulf of Mexico, haul up an air-breathing fish that has legs and cries. Possibly the dawn taxpayer.

A COTTON SALE

(From the Buffalo Evening News.)

The United States is going to do something to assist Spain to get back on her feet and at the same time profit itself. The Export-Import Bank has agreed to provide 80 per cent of the credits amounting to $13,750,000 required by the Franco government to buy 250,000 bales of American cotton and start the mills of Catalonia running again. The cotton will go to Spain in American ships and will be paid for in eight quarterly installments, the first to be made six months after delivery.

There is no suggestion of sentiment in this transaction. It is an out-and-out business affair, with Spanish banks guaranteeing payment and the Franco government giving assurance that dollar exchange will be ready to meet maturities. The United States has a great store of cotton, and the federal government has granted a subsidy of 1½ cents a pound to producers. The Catalan mills are accustomed to using American cotton; and it would cost them something to attune their machinery to another quality of fiber. If they were to do so, the situation would be made more than ever difficult for American producers, who have lost markets because the government has held surpluses rather than let them go at the world price. This policy has encouraged cotton production in many new quarters. If the United States can hold the Spanish market, it will be so much to the advantage of its producers.

THE CAPITAL PARADE FAIR ENOUGH

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

UNPLEASANT FACTS WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—In the shadow of a fearful world war, which the lineup of democracies versus dictatorships is now quite clear and complete, the meaning of the failure to revise the neutrality act is more than ever portentous. The Russo-German pact, which might better be called an alliance, rules out the possibility of starving Germany into submission. In one extraordinary stroke, it has shattered the old strategy of the democracies. The English and French, still markedly inferior to the Germans in the air, can attack only with planes which they will desperately need to buy in this country. Because the arms embargo is still part of the neutrality act, the planes cannot legally be bought.

In the terror and excitement of these days, it is difficult to think realistically, but it is surely time for some realistic thinking on the European military situation, and the neutrality act's relation to it.

WAR STRATEGY Briefly speaking, the most authoritative picture of the democracies' military problem begins with the question, How can Germany be attacked, now that the strategy of starvation is impracticable? The Siegfried line, or west wall along the Rhine, is complete. One who discussed the matter not long ago with the chief of the English general staff, General Lord Gort, is authority for the statement that, in the opinion of British and French experts, the German west wall may be broken—but only at the possible cost of the lives of between 500,000 and 1,000,000 men.

Whatever the situation in Italy, the Alpine passes into Germany are impassable if defended. As the German fleet is far weaker than in 1914, the British navy may do more damage than in the last war, but any invasion of Germany from the sea is thought to be impracticable. Thus, Germany is well protected on her whole western front, while to the east she is opposed only by the Poles, to whom the English and French will have some difficulty even in getting supplies. And beyond Poland is Russia, Germany's new friend, ready with almost inexhaustible depots of war materials.

TERROR FROM THE AIR Under the circumstances, aerial warfare is more than ever important. French and English airplane production (which is the really significant factor, in view of the wartime mortality of existing air fleets) has improved. But the French improvement is miserably small, and even the tremendous effort of the English has only brought the ratio of German air superiority from two to one to an estimated three to two.

German cockiness about their air force is so great that when Dr. George W. Lewis, director of aeronautical research of the United States advisory committee, and similar high officials have visited Germany, they have been given cars and blank passes, and told they might see anything they wanted to. Nor is the cockiness unjustified. Where French planes are made as though they were expensive watches, and even English methods remain rather slow, German air production is like that of Ford cars. German factories are scattered and concealed in forests. A fringe of airports, hidden in woods with their hangars sunk many feet underground, runs along the German western frontier. German air officials openly boast that they can send bombing flights of 50 planes an hour over London every hour for two continuous weeks.

The protection against high altitude bombing, except by defending aircraft, is virtually nil. From their invisible heights in the upper air, the bombers will drop high compression liquid air bombs, which destroy all life in a wide radius, or the little incendiary bombs, the size of tomato cans, which generate a heat of 2,000 degrees centigrade on striking. One plane can carry 1,000 of the incendiary bombs, and, unless military calculations are incorrect, half a plane will be enough to reduce a vast area of a great city to smoking ashes.

Immediate mass bombing may be avoided, as the Germans, protected by their west wall, hope to roll up Poland and make a quick prize, while the French and English, in view of their air inferiority, are not likely to be the first to try it. Meanwhile, unless we wish to risk German and Russian domination of most of the world, the English and French must have American planes at once.

No Reflection

Intended.

There is intention, here, to reflect upon the integrity of the fine fellows who operate 99 per cent of the gasoline filling stations, or of the equally honest and straightforward distributors of gasoline who fill the same 99 per cent of filling station storage tanks.

But, following a conversation with Guy Holcombe, president of the Georgia Association of Petroleum Dealers, some of the information acquired seemed too interesting not to pass on.

It must be remembered that the association headed by Mr. Holcombe is formed of gasoline retailers, the men who operate the filling stations to which you and I drive up when we need a replenishment of the fuel tank in the family bus. The distributors are not in this organization.

It must be remembered, too, that the same 99 per cent of up-right retailers are more anxious than anybody else to see the 1 per cent of tricksters halted in their trickery. The gasoline tax is collected from the consumer by the retailer, it is collected from him by the distributor and it is from the latter business that the state collects its revenue from this source.

But some of the stories of trickery, or possible trickery, revealed by Mr. Holcombe are truly fascinating.

No Criticism

Of Revenue Department.

Likewise, neither Mr. Holcombe nor his fellow filling station operators have any fault to find with the state revenue commission, its chief, Grady Head, or his personnel. Their only criticism is with the state itself which is trying to do a job simply with a system and force adapted to 15 or 20 years ago, touching an industry that has multiplied several times through the intervening years.

But what do you think of this for a yarn: Suppose an unscrupulous wholesaler ships a tank of gasoline into Georgia, presumed en route through this state to a destination in another state. He wouldn't pay tax on that gasoline to Georgia, because it was not for sale in this state.

But, suppose again, by convenience with a tricky gasoline dealer in Georgia, the gasoline is pumped out of that tank car and it is refilled with water, before it goes out of the state. Presumably, with a confederate on the outside to dispose of the water and "cover up."

Mr. Holcombe suggested that could happen.

Suppose,

Again.

Again, remember that kerosene costs less, from the refiner, than does gasoline. Also, kerosene pays a state tax of 1 cent per gallon, whereas gasoline pays a state tax of 6 cents and a federal tax of 1 cent, in addition.

Then picture to yourself an unscrupulous dealer purchasing, and paying tax upon, 10,000 gallons of gasoline and 5,000 gallons of kerosene. Imagine him pouring both products into the same 15,000-gallon storage tank and then selling the mixture to innocent and unsuspecting motorists as gasoline. Nice profit, there, if it has ever been done.

Inspecting

Pumps.

Mr. Holcombe says a gasoline pump should be inspected at least every 90 days to see that it is delivering five gallons when it so registers. Instead of, perhaps, 4½ gallons. The number of pumps in Georgia would require, with the present force of inspectors, that each man inspect 80 pumps a day, to make the rounds each 90 days. Yet an inspector can only test, properly, some 18 or 20 pumps per day, at the utmost.

Mr. Holcombe thinks, reasonably, that a system of policing installed and operated by the dealers themselves—it is to their interest to keep the rascals out—would result in more effective results than the best the state can do with its present inadequate forces. And, as a result, the state would collect a couple of millions or so in additional revenue it is now missing, as well as protecting better the interests of the individual gasoline purchaser.

Nazism vs. Communism

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

28.—There are a couple of details in the military treaty by which Nazism and Communism confessed their identity and their community of interest which should be hung around the necks of both parties and their adherents. In this country it would be nice if Fritz Kuhn and Earl Browder could be produced on the same platform at the same time to receive the order of the Albatross, but, as that is not just now feasible it will have to be done symbolically.

Browder, it will be remembered, was caught flatfooted by the news of the confession and neither he nor the Communist paper knew the answers until sufficient time had elapsed to permit communication with Moscow. He and the paper then came out with an excuse as long and about as straight as a ball of string in which they said at one point: "In each and every non-aggression pact which the Soviet Union concludes there is a basic clause of the Soviet peace policy which provides that in the event that one of the parties invades or commits an act of aggression against a third nation, the other party (the Soviet Union) is not bound to the treaty, is free to act in defense of peace."

Get that, now. Browder and the Communist paper says this is a basic clause of the Soviet peace policy.

But get this, too. There is no such clause in the Hitler-Stalin confession, and this means that if Germany attacks Poland, as she will, in due time, just as she attacked Czechoslovakia, Stalin doesn't have the right to revoke the treaty. On the contrary, by the conspicuous omission of this basic clause of the Soviet peace policy, Stalin obviously repudiates it. He gives Hitler an unwritten but, nevertheless, plain assurance that when Germany attacks Poland, Russia will not feel obliged to do anything about it.

Just what he will do, they don't say, but from the smell of the deal it may be assumed that he and Hitler will divide Poland between them. In fact, the second article of the confession of kinship and mutual principles constitutes a gimmick whereby Stalin emphasizes his invitation to Hitler to attack Poland. The article says that if Germany or Russia is attacked by a third power, neither Germany nor Russia will assist the offender. That gives Hitler and Stalin the right to decide between them that Poland was the aggressor when the war comes and to act accordingly.

Only An

Act

But the little pet of the document is article four, which says that neither party will associate itself with any other grouping of powers which directly or indirectly is aimed at the other.

Now what is the spirit of that one? The spirit of it is that the anti-German boycott is off, and that Browder and Kuhn, in this country, are placed under an obligation to quit needing him and another, and that their respective followings, such as they are, must abandon their reasons for political existence. Kuhn exists to combat Bolshevism, or as he and Hitler have been calling it, Jewish Bolshevism. Browder exists to combat Nazi-Fascism. He has said so hundreds of times.

This clause in the treaty says "directly or indirectly." It means that the mock-feud is absolutely off now, and that followers of Hitler and Stalin are obliged to cease gain-thief and faking and co-operate. The co-operation is provided for in the trade agreement, and it certainly would be disobedience and traitorous conduct for members of either side here to fail to obey orders. It may take a little while for Browder and Kuhn to make the turn, and they probably will be allowed some time, in view of the mental peculiarity of the American people who have a disagreeable habit of pointing out inconsistencies. But, as soon as possible, they are obliged to lay off their old program of saving the United States from each other's political vice.

Browder and the Communists mustn't directly or indirectly antagonize the Nazis.

They are comrades now, though it may take them time to realize as much, and the Americans are the winners. The Americans now have the admission of their respective bosses that the whole feud was an act and a fake, that it wasn't a contest to save us from Nazism or Bolshevism, but an attack by one enemy on two fronts against American Democracy.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

AN "IMPARTIAL" HISTORY The German press is printing atrocity stories with the Poles as the guilty ones. The Polish press is printing stories of rape and murder by the Germans and the German press is shouting "Sweinhund!" Propaganda is playing its part and the newspapers, controlled in both nations, carefully are printing stories of atrocity.

During the World War we were treated with stories of babies spitted on bayonets; of women mistreated; of old women burned and murdered; of old men subjected to all sorts of humiliation; of children degraded.

Some of it was true. But, of course, most of it was pure propaganda, properly sworn to and attested by the witnesses. All war is gross and dirty, with little glory in it, save the glory that men will die for a cause in which they believe, mistakenly or not. There is murder and degradation.

But propaganda is one of the skilled arts. It is prepared for a purpose. There was all sorts of propaganda in the recent Spanish civil war, both sides being equally guilty. Most of the atrocity stories were untrue, although, of course, there was too much of murder and cruelty.

For years Russia and Germany fulminated against one another, providing the most appalling stories of one another's character, or rather lack of it. Now they fall into one another's arms. The most laughable, "swinging through the air on the propaganda trapeze," is being done in the Daily Worker as Comrade Browder attempts to explain that when he called Hitler and the Germans a lot of pigs, he didn't mean it. He had his fingers crossed.

Have we changed? An "impartial" history of the recent War Between the States, as written by a gentleman in Springfield, Mass., will give us the answer.

CIVIL WAR PROPAGANDA Mr. John S. C. Abbott, of that eastern city, wrote himself "The History of the Civil War in America, Comprising a Free and Impartial Account of the Origins, Progress of the Rebellion, of Various Naval and Military Engagements, of Heroic Deeds, Etc."

I have the volumes in my section of books about the War Between the States, having acquired them in Boston some years ago. They are anathema to one of southern persuasion, are those books. But it is obvious the good gentleman had been listening to much skillful propaganda.

He writes with terror of First Manassas, where the Southern troops delivered a timely blow and put the Federal troops to rout. The precipitous, headlong flight was led by several congressmen who had come out on a neighboring ride to watch the battle.

Mr. Abbott puts down as solemn truth the charge that the Southern troops prowled the field, taking bones of the Federal dead to be carved into curios. He charges that skulls were taken and cleaned and made into trays. He writes of southern women going into raptures on receiving those ghastly curios.

Now, of course, they did not exist. There was no such barbarity. Yet Mr. Abbott, writing his first volume in 1863, had his stories from the unimpeachable source—that is, someone who had heard it from a man who had heard it from a soldier.

There it is in a book. The book is little read today. Its pages are yellow and brittle and Mr. Abbott himself is dust and, I hope and trust, enjoying the celestial shades, but a little bit embarrassed about being taken in by propaganda.

MEANWHILE, WE FACE We face, of course, a constant barrage of duly authenticated stories from Germany, Poland, England and France.

It will require a level head to sift out all the propaganda designed to influence our emotions. The newspapers and wire services face a tremendous task of sifting all the news for propaganda. The reporters, in far-flung corners of the world where often they are so censored and so confined they cannot really do a good reporter's job, must try and sift the government reports for propaganda.

Human nature doesn't change much. It would be possible to dig back into Holy Writ and discuss some of the atrocity stories, some of which may have been received in exaggerated form by the reporters of those days.

The siege of Troy, after all, was started largely by propaganda. It was not so much the beauty of Helen which launched a thousand ships as it was the propaganda about an insult to Helen's beauty.

Well, so it goes. We haven't got much veneer on us. A propaganda atrocity story will strip us away and cause us to reach for our gun and say, "Let me at the swine."

First, if possible, we ought to see if someone hasn't thrown us a fast one across the outside corner of the plate.

One man's meat is another's poison, whether it is meat for the stomach or the mind.

Some weeks ago a young American clergyman was captured by Arab bandits and held for ransom. His hosts treated him as well as they knew how, yet he came back to civilization with "stomach trouble" and dysentery. The food that nourished and delighted the Arabs was poison to him.

An American dentist, who recently completed a leisurely tour of the world and reported his findings in a book, discovered that all races are affected in much the same way. The natives of all lands get along nicely while they stick to their own outlandish diet, but promptly develop the white man's troubles when they eat his kind of food.

Now an Englishman named Egerton, having spent six months living among the natives in the Cameroons, has

Soviet Pact Won't Aid Nazis Is Opinion of W.D. Anderson

Southern Manufacturer, on Return From Baltic Cruise, Sees Russo-German Nonaggression Agreement as Logical Development—Discounts Its Political Value.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(P)—Industrially speaking, the Soviet Russia-German nonaggression pact is of no advantage to Germany in the opinion of W. D. Anderson, president of the Bibb Manufacturing Company, one of the south's largest textile concerns.

Anderson and Mrs. Anderson returned today on the Swedish-American liner Gripsholm from a 45-day cruise to Baltic countries. At the same time, Anderson said he believed the pact was a logical development since "Russia is teeming with raw materials and people and has extensive mines and fields while Germany is developed industrially as is no other nation in Europe."

"From the political point of view," Anderson added, "I don't see how the pact can be worth anything to Germany and I don't think England has lost anything." Anderson said he could not "imagine Stalin sticking his head out for anybody."

Improved Conditions. Anderson said he was in Russia four years ago and was impressed on this visit by the improved conditions in that country. He said the people seemed to be better dressed, and looked healthier and happier than they did on his last visit.

"The thrift and energy of Norwegians and Swedes is a wonderful thing," he also commented. "The fact that Norway is a thousand miles long—mostly mountains and hills—and still the farmers make a living out of a piece of ground we Americans wouldn't use as a kitchen garden."

He added it was significant that Norway with a population of only 2,500,000 is fourth in shipping tonnage in the world.

The Andersons visited Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Estonia, Russia and Danzig and Anderson said all appeared prosperous, with evidence of prosperity on every hand.

Visited Danzig. The cruise ship went up the Vistula river to Danzig, which Anderson said gave no indication of its approaching role in international affairs.

"It was a most amazing experience to see the amount of business on that river," he said. "There was shipbuilding and more shipbuilding, larger docks than I had ever seen. I never saw so many grain elevators, so much shipping."

He said both banks of the river were "beehives of activity."

The only sinister sight on the voyage, he remarked, was a fortified area further up the river which once had been a playground and park for Danzig population.

The return voyage of the Gripsholm was entirely normal, Anderson said, with full radio reports both incoming and outgoing and no indication of world tension.

THEATER GUILD LAUNCHES SEASON

Sponsoring two presentations of Jack Barefield's "Plantagenets: Kings of England," the Atlanta Theater Guild, 87 Fifteenth street, N. E., opens its fall season tonight at 8:30 o'clock in the castle's garden. Vernon G. Williams is director of the guild.

Reading eight scenes from Shakespeare, Mr. Barefield will tell the stories of the rise and fall of three of the Plantagenet Kings: Richard II, Henry IV, and Richard III. The production is fully costumed and Mr. Williams has built a suitable stage in the amphitheater of the castle which is ideal acoustically. Hugh Ivey will deliver the narration that bridges the gaps in the story of the kings. Miss Elizabeth Hopson, of Atlanta, has written and recorded music for use as backgrounds.

In case of rain the performances will take place in the castle's auditorium. The second sponsored presentation will be Thursday evening, J. C. McMichael Jr. and Mrs. Mamie Dickson assist with the performances.

RULES EMPLOYERS MAY SET PAY DAYS

Arnall States Workers Must Be Compensated at Least Twice Monthly.

Employers must pay their hired help at least twice a month, but they have the right to set the date for payment, Attorney General Ellis Arnall ruled yesterday.

Ben T. Huet, commissioner of labor, had requested a ruling on the right of an employee to demand his wages sooner than the time set by the employer.

Quoting the law, the attorney general wrote: "Payments shall be made on such dates during the month as may be decided upon by such person, firm or corporation" doing the employing.

In regard to services rendered under a weekly contract between employer and employee to be paid by the week, Arnall said: "The day upon which payment should be made would be a matter controlled entirely by the terms of the contract between the parties."

GOOD MORNING By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

"AS THY DAYS."

Standing on the station platform at Brunswick the other evening, talking with Conductor Oscar Williamson, while waiting for time to board the train to come to Atlanta, I asked him if Mr. Ford was still holding the throttle on that run. Just at that moment Mr. Ford came walking down by the train to compare time with the conductor. After shaking hands and "passing the usual remarks" on the weather, etc., I asked Mr. Ford how long he had been an engineer.

"Since 1888," he replied. It didn't take me long to subtract and get the answer—51 years. Captain Williamson has been railroading 41 years, so that engineer and conductor on that train the other night represented a total of 92 years of experience. I asked Mr. Ford how he felt after 51 years of continuous service in the important position as an engineer, and he smiled and said that he felt like he would like to go on for yet many years.

As I listened to the click of the wheels, after I went to bed, I kept thinking of Mr. Ford as a fine illustration of my text for the following Sunday morning—"As thy days, so shall thy strength be." (Deuteronomy 33:25). Moses, in his parting message to the sons of Asher, promised them plenty of work, ample preparation for their work as signified by the shoes of iron and brass, and, best of all, strength for the days—all the days.

What a world in which to live if every man would accept life as a gift from God—seeking to husband physical strength and material gifts, develop mental awareness and spiritual sensitiveness to the will and way of God! I can't believe that there would be any such fear as today stalks the world.

Mild you, Moses did not promise the sons of Asher an easy time—he assured them that they would have to work and that they would have to work under difficulties—that there would be such stony paths to travel as only shoes of iron and brass could withstand—that they would grow weary. But "as thy days, so shall thy strength be." No day too long, no task too difficult, no road too rocky, no burden too heavy—"as thy days, so shall thy strength be."

I don't believe we would be happy if our tasks could be fully met by our own strength and our own wisdom. It is when we think of our work in terms of God's will that we desire to work beyond our strength. That is the way of abiding satisfaction. Whether we are blessed to serve a long while, as in the case of Mr. Ford, or whether our days upon the earth be few, let us seek every day to wear the shoes of God and walk in His light and strength.

The Siegel letter, written in May, 1938, to Lincoln, President Edward Duffield, of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, and President Guy W. Cox, of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company. It said the companies had been guilty of "vicious imposition on helpless people" in selling one family of four policies totaling $18,207 with annual premiums totaling $926 a year. The family's income was only $35 a week, Siegel testified.

Siegel told the subcommittee that by readjusting the family's insurance the policyholders' advisory council, of which he is a partner, had reduced the insurance to $12,000, had cut the premiums to a total of $245 a year and had obtained $600 in cash for the family. He said his firm's fee was $105.

Snapshots at Siegel.
Lincoln testified that Siegel had been employed by Metropolitan in 1931, adding that he did not know whether he was discharged or whether he resigned, "but if he resigned it was by request because of irregularities."

"It came to the point," the insurance official said later, "where not only Siegel but other discharged agents were setting themselves up as insurance counselors."

"Counselors blossomed forth in every direction, and almost all of them were discharged employees."

With More Killed in June and July

New Increase in Deaths Flashes Red Light of Warning to American Motorists; Fatality Curve Rises Second Month, Ending 19-Month Downtrend.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—(AP)—A new increase in traffic deaths after a 19-month slump flashed the red light of warning to American motorists today.

The National Safety Council reported fatalities rose one per cent in July in the wake of a two per cent upturn in June.

It is stated the upward trend in those two months broke a record of sustained improvement which began in November, 1937, and confirmed the "fact that America's most successful traffic safety drive definitely has stalled."

Rural Deaths Increase.
During July the council counted 2,750 deaths on the streets and highways compared with 2,720 in July, 1938. During the first seven months of 1939 it recorded 16,250 fatalities—four per cent fewer than the 16,880 who died during a similar period last year.

Deaths in rural areas increased for the fourth successive month, offsetting gains that had been made in the cities.

The safety leaders in the various urban groups, with death rates for the first seven months, were listed thus:

Group 1 (over 500,000 population) Boston 7.8; Milwaukee 8.3; Pittsburgh 8.8.

Atlanta's Group.
Group 2 (250,000-500,000) Providence, R. I. 4.7; Kansas City, Mo. 7.9; Rochester, N. Y. 9.3.

Group 3 (100,000-250,000) New Bedford, Mass. 3; Duluth, Minn. 3.4; Des Moines, Iowa, 3.5.

Among cities with perfect records in the smaller classes were Johnstown, Pa.; Topeka, Kan.; Hoboken, N. J.; Brookline, Mass.; Chelsea, Mass.; Dubuque, Iowa; Wausau, Wis.; Fairmont, W. Va., and Maplewood, N. J.

Highlights in Atlanta's Own World's Fair --- Children Playing Leads in Miniature Affair

Atlanta's youngsters had their day yesterday. They put on a world's fair at Piedmont park. Before opening the fair, however, they paraded through the Tenth street business section. Here is one of the ingenious floats that made up the procession.

While youth of many European countries prepared for war yesterday, these children strutted along Peachtree street near Piedmont park with floats instead of gas masks. Children from all of the city's playgrounds made every effort to make the day a success.

Fine Being Mailed, Violator Wires

This one had police amazed yesterday:
Last week Tom Thomas, 21, negro, of 213 Ashby street, was given a traffic ticket charging him with running through a red light at Fair and Grant streets. Yesterday police received a telegram from Augusta which said:

"My job called me out of town, and so I am mailing $7 to take care of my traffic violation."

He even gave the number of the ticket and listed the names of the officers, Patrolmen H. B. Creedy and H. Clay.

Not so jubilant were hundreds of footsore compatriots who faced another day of searching for reservations.

AMERICANS SUPPORT HULL
IN MOVE TO CANCEL TREATY WITH JAPAN, BAN ON ARMS

Callup Poll
Dr. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 29.—Strong public support of the United States government's decision to end its trade treaty with Japan is indicated today in a nation-wide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

Not only do the rank and file of American voters approve Secretary Hull's recent notice to the Japanese government, but a large majority of them say that the United States should shut off the flow of war materials going from this country to Japan, as soon as the present treaty expires, next January.

Watchful of events in Asia as well as in Europe, ordinary Americans from New England to Puget Sound average more than 4 to 1 in favor of letting Japan feel American disapproval in a concrete way.

The Institute survey used the same methods which have been tested in dozens of state and national election contests to poll a representative cross-section of the United States electorate. Interviewing men and women meticulously chosen in every state to represent America's 45,000,000 voters, the Institute asked: "At the end of six months, when the treaty expires, should the United States refuse to sell Japan any more war materials?"

The answers of those with opinions are:

Should Refuse to Sell War Materials 82%
Should Not Refuse 18%

Asked in a preliminary question whether they approved or disapproved of the government's action in cancelling the American-Japanese treaty, those with opinions divided in almost the same proportions:

Approve Ending Treaty 81%
Disapprove 19%

In each case approximately one voter in eight said that he was undecided or had no opinion.

With about five months to go before the cancellation of the treaty becomes effective, Japan, of course, will have an opportunity of reversing the Far Eastern tactics which led to Washington's action. Political observers report that Japan may attempt such a reversal in view of the startling agreement reached by Germany and Soviet Russia which leaves Japan "isolated" in the Far East.

The Institute will repeat its present survey of American public opinion later this fall in order to measure possible trends in United States feelings.

In recent months, however, Americans have been increasingly sympathetic to China and increasingly willing to exert various economic pressures on the nation generally regarded as the aggressor, Japan.

Two months ago, in mid-June, the Institute found only 72 per cent of the voters interviewed in favor of an embargo on war materials to China, while 40 per cent favored an embargo on war materials to China as well.

There has also been an increase in the number of Americans willing to stop buying goods made in Japan, according to recent Institute surveys. While 37 persons in a hundred said they would join such a boycott in October, 1937, just after the outbreak of the Chinese-Japanese struggle, 66 per cent in every hundred approved a boycott this June.

Today's survey shows that Secretary Hull's action in notifying Japan of the cancellation of the treaty has won the approval of nearly all Americans, regardless of party.

Eighty-one per cent of the Democrats with opinions give their approval and 79 per cent of the minor party voters approve also. Approval in the Institute's referendum, while 82 per cent of the Republicans called into service as yet. Defense Minister Ian Mackenzie said that the dominion government would supply all training planes required.

OTTAWA, Aug. 29.—(UP)—Canada continued preparations for a possible war emergency tonight by calling upon the 20 squadrons which comprise the auxiliary air force to "recruit up to strength."

No members of the auxiliary have been called into service as yet.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29.—(AP) John A. Kessler, a starboard Alcatraz federal prisoner, testified today he had seen CIO Leader Harry Bridges four times at Pierre's Chateau on Baker street here, previously described in testimony as a Communist gathering place during the 1934 strike.

Harry Sweeney, vice president of the AFL Shingle Weavers' Union at Raymond, Wash., said Gordon Carter, Aberdeen shingle weaver, told him he had been approached twice by immigration officers, who wanted him to testify against Harry Bridges.

Bridges' attorneys have sought to show there was a "conspiracy" among various persons to deport the labor leader by offering "improper inducements" for testimony against him.

Warnings of Air Attacks Described.

PARIS, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The government tonight told citizens remaining in Paris what signals to listen for as a warning in case of air raids.

Sirens screaming for four minutes with blasts of 20 seconds, interrupted by 10-second periods of silence, means enemy planes on the way.

At the end of the alert there will be signals by three-minute continuous blasts.

A special signal for gas attacks is to be sounded by patrolling detector cars with an intermittent and piercing note. The end of the gas alert will be signalled by the same note sounded continuously.

The public was warned, however, not to wait for the gas attack signal, but to don their gas masks immediately they hear the explosion of a shell.

2-Day 'Blank' Ends With Money Missing

A strange story of a two-day "blank" which began in a restaurant on Whitehall street and ended in Grant Park was related to police yesterday by Cecil Hodges, 20, of 501 Boulevard place, N. E.

Hodges said he went into the restaurant Friday night and started a casual conversation with a stranger. After a few minutes, the man offered him a cigarette, which he accepted and smoked.

He said his next vague recollection was getting into an automobile. He then remembers "coming to" in the park two days later with a $25 watch and a small amount of money missing.

Georgia Leads Way to 'Free Trade'
Among 48 Rival States in U. S.

Tax Barriers to Commerce Dropped on Trucking and Fishing in Trend Away From Depression-Inspired 'Tariff Walls'; Tennessee Declines Truck Treaty.

By LEE ROGERS.

Georgia is showing the way in the current movement to re-establish "free trade" among these United States.

In fact Georgia's public officials will tell you the state is now and always has been essentially a "free trade state."

"Tariff walls" of one sort or another set up between the 48 states in the last 10 years—usually in the form of special taxes or flat bans on certain goods—raised during the depression to protect shivering local businesses and growing so fast they aroused widespread fears this country might be divided permanently into small economic units like Europe—are gradually being torn down through interstate commerce.

Truck Tax Lifted.
And it is in this tearing down of trade barriers that Georgia is showing the way to her sister states.

Major tariff restriction to free movement of interstate trade has been the tax on trucks and truckers. Georgia in recent months has entered into reciprocal agreements with all her southeastern neighbors, and agreements have been reached whereby trucks bearing Georgia licenses move unhampered through the territory of the other states and those from the other states move through Georgia without molestation.

This reciprocal agreement, however, is not in effect with Tennessee, a state which to date has refused to negotiate despite the fact Revenue Commissioner T. Grady Head only last week sent another Georgia-approved plan to the Tennessee revenue commissioner in an effort to remove barriers between the two states.

Most truckers from Georgia now route around Tennessee to escape the local tax. Public Service Commissioner Matt L. McWhorter said:

Fishing 'Tariff' Slashed.
Commissioner Head has written other states regarding the reciprocal trade agreement and, while it is only in the southeastern states that agreements have been signed, the others, save Tennessee, have a "gentlemen's agreement" to the same effect.

At the last session of the general assembly Georgia legislators removed the tariff on out-of-state fishing boats which was directed primarily at Florida. The license was reduced from $500 to $25 by both states. Georgia also reduced from $500 to $50 the tax on out-of-state wholesale fish dealers.

There is only one discriminatory tax existing, Commissioner Head said, and an effort is being made to remove that. The state collects a double tax on wine made out of the state. In other words, if a particular grade of wine had a 30-cent tax per gallon if distilled in Georgia, it would have a 60-cent tax if distilled in another state.

Wine Industry Lags.
"This law was passed in an effort to encourage the production of Georgia wine, but the Georgia industry has not developed," Head commented.

Officials of the Revenue Department, the State Agriculture Department, the Law Department and the Public Service Commission point out that on other interstate commerce the out-of-state dealers pay the same taxes as the Georgia dealers, and no more—other than a small inspection fee required by the state. But it was pointed out that there are so many exceptions in the law, made to eliminate the tax where certain Georgia products were used, it is ineffective.

Georgia believes the best markets for its own products can be obtained by allowing trade and commerce to move freely between the states with only the regulations necessary to protect its citizens as to purity and standardization of product, Head said.

"The state has placed no burden on the non-resident and requires no tax from him not required from the resident," he explained.

YOUNGSTERS HERE HOLD 'WORLD'S FAIR'

Children From City's Playgrounds Enjoy Festival at Piedmont Park.

By LUKE GREENE.

The lusty yells of hundreds of Atlanta youngsters harmonized in a symphony that was typically American yesterday afternoon in Piedmont Park as children from all of the city's playgrounds mingled with their elders in a colorful miniature World's Fair.

Throughout the afternoon boys and girls of all ages filed through the gates and strolled down the midway watching the sights. Some held on to the hands of mothers and fathers who seemed to be getting as much fun out of the show as the kids. Others darted here and there by themselves, expressing their reactions in a variety of ways.

There were plenty of flags flying, but the display of Americanism by the boys and girls themselves was even more impressive. They formed a sharp contrast to European youths, many of whom probably were being fitted with gas masks at about the same time.

Parade Opens Celebration.
The celebration began at 2:30 o'clock with a parade through the Tenth street business section. Many of the floats were a tribute to the ingenuity of the youngsters. Hundreds of proud mothers and fathers stood on the sidewalks and watched.

Back at the park, the children entered with a parade through the Tenth street business section. There were booths and side shows. There were vendors with balloons of all colors. There were stands with cold drinks and ice cream and pink cotton candy—everything, in fact, to make it a real fair.

In the center of the athletic field were the trylon and sphere, symbols of the New York World's Fair.

Marionettes Draw Crowd.
The marionette show probably drew the largest crowd. The kids stood on their tiptoes, peering over the shoulders of their taller companions, in an effort to see the miniature figures that dangled on the stage.

One of the tents contained "Half Pint," advertised as "the world's smallest pony." In another were the Mexican hairless dogs, which, incidentally, proved to be animal crackers and "hot dogs" with toothpicks stuck in them.

Apparently disappointed, one youngster came strutting out of the tent, yelling "Fake!"

Band Concert Given.
A radio broadcast was one of the features of the program. Another was a concert by the Georgia State Girls' Military band. Late in the afternoon a concert of popular music by the Atlanta federal orchestra under the direction of Walter Sheets and an eight-act show concluded the program.

It was a tired bunch of youngsters who finally left the great World's Fair. They went home to bed. But it had been a great day for them, and no doubt, some of them carried on the show in their dreams.

MAYOR REQUESTS $25,000 GIFTS FOR AUDITORIUM PARK

Efforts Made To Interest Near-by Property Owners in Beautification; City Has Only $15,000.

Negotiations with citizens for donation of a minimum of $25,000 to aid in the development of the auditorium park now under construction are being carried on, Mayor Hartsfield said yesterday.

The city has only about $15,000 available to beautify the park and widen Courtland street, Edgewood avenue and Gilmer street, the boundaries, he pointed out.

Therefore, efforts are being made to interest property owners in the vicinity in helping with the cost of beautification, since the completed park will be an added attraction in the area.

Officials have decided upon a "closed" park rather than upon constructing an "open" park, Hartsfield said, explaining that the purpose of this park will be to provide a beautiful, restful bit of scenery upon which people may gaze but not walk and lounge.

Concrete seats around the edges and jutting into the park will be constructed but the park itself will be fenced, he said. Plans call for grassy plots, clumps of shrubs and small trees landscaped about the central theme—an electric fountain.

Work on clearing the park is nearly completed. Cutting back the boundary streets 10 feet and erecting safety islands for pedestrians at Edgewood and Courtland and at Edgewood and Gilmer are the next steps to be taken.

Charged With Illegally Remaining in Country on Visitor's Permit.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 29.—(P)—Joan Manners, British film actress whose differences with her divorced husband, Screen Dialogue Director John Langan, recently sent her to jail, was arrested today by federal immigration authorities.

Inspector Francis Hickey, of the immigration service, alleged Miss Manners, a native of Rustenberg, South Africa, illegally remained in the country after entering at Blaine, Wash., on a temporary visitor's permit.

Miss Manners was arrested last June while picketing a studio employing Langan. She was sentenced to five days in jail for contempt of a court order prohibiting her from molesting him. She was freed three days later on a writ of habeas corpus.

Chase National Bank, New York, will be the guest speaker.

MANDATORY JAIL TERMS FOR DRUNK DRIVERS SOUGHT

City Attorney Drafts Ordinance at Request of Councilman Bolen Designed To Curb Offense.

An ordinance designed to curb drunken driving by providing mandatory jail sentences for the offense was being drafted last night by City Attorney Jack Savage at the request of Councilman C. M. Bolen. The new bill is expected to go before police committee Friday night.

Under the tentative provisions, a three-day jail sentence would be imposed upon first offenders. Second offenders would be sentenced to 10 days in jail.

Drunken drivers were shown to be a major cause of traffic injuries in a report recently prepared by Public Safety Commissioner Lon Sullivan. Drastic action against such offenders has been urged repeatedly by informed officials.

$52 Is Usual Fine.

At present drunk drivers usually are fined $52 when found guilty in recorder's court or bound over to the Fulton county criminal court.

"Apparently," Councilman Bolen said, "fines don't mean anything to this most dangerous class of motorists. In that case we must tack a jail sentence to the fine. I think those who want to co-operate with us will approve of this ordinance."

Councilmen John White and John Marley were said yesterday to be in accord with the Bolen measure. If final draft is completed, the ordinance is expected to receive next Friday the sanction of the police committee, of which Bolen is chairman.

Malcom Approves Plan.

Captain Jack Malcom, head of the police traffic department, also approved the new proposal. "If we could weed out drunk drivers," he said, "much of our worry would be over." He pointed out that serious accidents no longer are caused by speed, as was the case last year, but by drunk and careless motorists.

Savage said he would pattern the bill after those in effect in other cities. In Louisville, Ky., the minimum penalty for drunk driving is a nine-day jail sentence and a fine of $19.

MAYOR TO HONOR POLICE AT BARBECUE

City police will be honored at Lakemore today by Mayor Hartsfield, acting as host at a barbecue to commend them for efficient police work during the last year, especially in the field of traffic.

Evening and morning watch officers will attend the affair from 1 to 3 p. m., while the day watch will be entertained from 6 to 8 p. m. The barbecue has been divided in this way so that the city will not be without police protection at any time.

The event is an outcome of a promise by Mayor Hartsfield some months ago when he offered a "banquet" if the city passed 50 consecutive days without a traffic fatality. The record established was 79 days.

CHICKENS IN SACK RESULT IN ARREST

Suspect Unable To Explain Possession of Poultry.

Thomas Roosevelt, 30, of a Fair street address, was arrested by radio patrolmen yesterday on a charge of suspicion of larceny. Officers said he could not give a satisfactory explanation of why he was walking along the street in broad daylight carrying three live chickens in a sack.

COUNTERFEITING LAID TO TWO MEN IN ATHENS

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 29.—Federal authorities today disclosed the arrest of two men they listed as Weyman Scarborough and Lawrence Wise, on charges of counterfeiting. Both, they said, are being held in lieu of $2,500 bond.

Authorities said Wise passed a counterfeit half dollar at a local grocery store, and that he had other counterfeit coins in his pockets when arrested. Wise, they reported, implicated Scarborough, and arrest of the latter brought about the seizure of other coins and a mould outfit.

NEW YORK'S POLICE PREPARE FOR CONFLICT

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The New York police department today prepared for war.

It issued a six-page mimeographed order, to be effective in wartime, which would assign guards to power, gas, water and other utilities and public conveniences.

Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine, commander of the city's 18,000 police, appended, however, the remark that he was no "alarmist."

In 1937, 34.8 per cent of all persons arrested were under 25 years of age.

Cornerstone Is Laid for Georgia's New $815,000 Granite, Marble Building on Capitol Square

'Humanitarian' Edifice Is Name Proposed by Governor Rivers.

Democracy and peace were keynotes of speeches by state and federal officials yesterday as the cornerstone was laid for Georgia's new $815,000 granite and marble office building on Capitol Square.

Governor Rivers, speaking in behalf of the state, expressed the hope that when "the building is torn down, this state and nation will still be ruled by a great democracy, that this United States flag will still be flying and the flag of Georgia will still be flowing in the breeze."

"We want no dictators, no part of aggression," he declared as hundreds of state employees and citizens, gathered for the exercises, cheered.

Rivers Looks to Future.

Governor Rivers said that when the cornerstone finally was mottled, he hoped it would be by some of "our own people 200 years from now who will find the reports of the work we are now conducting and look back and say Ed Rivers and Dr. Collins and their fellow workers were trying to do a good job for the people of the state."

The cornerstone was laid by the

UNION OF CATHOLIC FACTIONS URGED

Pax Romana Congress Convened in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. Frederick H. Chase, of Lynn, Mass., urged a healing of the schism between Catholic churches of the east and western worlds today at a Byzantine rite mass witnessed by 1,500 persons representing 35 nations.

Doctor Chase, a priest of the Latin rite, preached in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, where the Latin altar had been transformed according to Byzantine rubrics for the mass chanted by eight priests of different eastern rites. Singing was in Greek, Arabic, Old Slavonic (Russian) and English.

The occasion was a public session of the Pax Romana congress for Catholic students from 35 nations in session here. The mass was arranged by a subdivision of the congress "pro oriente" which is working for the reunion with Rome of the dissident churches of the east, such as Greek and Russian Orthodox, and continued friendly relations between the Roman church and its eastern branches such as those represented today in the Byzantine rite.

ARMY STILL WAITS FOR BETTER GUNS, STAFF CHIEF SAYS

Marshall Tells Legion U. S. Now Uses Rifle 35 Years Old; Stresses Time To Make Weapons.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 29.—(P) General George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States army, said today that while congress has appropriated funds to provide better weapons of defense, production has not had time to reach top speed.

In a brief address to Virginia Legionnaires he emphasized the importance of the time element between the date funds are designated for defense purposes and the time when munitions production can reach full "flower."

He said the United States was using an army rifle "nearly 35 years old."

However, he said the United States was rapidly moving into production of improved types of weapons.

General Marshall said he was convinced that in any war, combat would revolve about the "man on the ground," who would need all the assistance of mechanized equipment, sea and air power. He spoke extemporaneously.

ATTORNEY GENERAL HAS BUSY PERIOD

Ellis Arnall Renders 518 Opinions in Less Than Seven Months.

It has been a business of keeping one's nose in the law books continuously during the past six months for Georgia's attorney general and his assistants.

Since February 2 when Ellis Arnall took over the duties of attorney general, he has rendered 518 opinions, considerably more than were rendered during all of 1938. Arnall attributed the big increase in demands on the attorney general to the school crisis, the pending call of an extra session and the economy committee.

PERSONALITY COUNTS

What is "personality"? What is "charm"? Why do some people have "oomph" and others not?

Some of it—but by no means all—is in looks. Some of it flows from good manners and easy deportment. Some reside in buoyant good health. Much of it is psychological.

Can personality and charm be acquired? By all means. No human being exists but can improve himself or herself by care and attention to the many "little things" that go to make up what is called "charm" and "personality."

Our Service Bureau at Washington has an interesting, informative and yes—thrilling—booklet on the art of increasing one's popularity and acceptability—the art of acquiring personality and charm. If you are interested in this subject—and who is not—send the coupon below for your copy.

Everybody's Happy Over New Parole Rule

Constitution Staff Photo—Bill Wilson, Solicitors of courts in which a criminal was convicted will get ample notification of parole and pardon petitions in the future, Governor Rivers and the State Pardon and Parole Board agreed yesterday after a conference with members of the Fulton county grand jury. Showing accord over the new plan, left to right, are Governor Rivers, John Mellett, member of the grand jury subcommittee, and Thomas C. Law, grand jury foreman.

JOB WAY UP NORTH IN ROCHESTER GOES TO NEGRO MAMMY

Wanted: A negro mammy not too old, not too fat, fairly intelligent, able-bodied, with good recommendations and who would like to live in Rochester, N. Y.

That was the request received by the Georgia state employment service, of the Department of Labor, and it was filled this week.

Carrie Beasley, 52, accepted the job and left by bus to begin her work for Mrs. Gunnar Gunnarson, a semi-invalid, in Rochester.

The bus didn't arrive on time. The employment service received the following telegram:

"Where is Carrie? Did she travel by bus. She hasn't arrived and I'm worried to death about her."

Carrie arrived about three hours late.

5 ARE ARRESTED ON BUG CHARGES

DeKalb Police Confiscate Lottery Equipment.

DeKalb county police led by Chief J. T. Dailey, raided a house at 71 Wyman street, S. E., yesterday and arrested three women and a man on lottery charges. They gave their names as Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Lewis, of the Wyman street address, and Mrs. J. C. Warren and Mrs. W. L. Copeland, of 373 Moreland avenue. All were released under $500 bonds. Officers said they confiscated a number of lottery tickets, three adding machines and other equipment.

PINE MOUNTAIN AREA ELECTS SUPERVISORS

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 29.—(P) George M. Adams, Columbus; Willis Biggers, Greenville; and Brooks Cuipepper, Talbotton, were elected supervisors for the Pine Mountain soil conservation district at an election held in six counties today.

They were without opposition. Counties voting were Meriwether, Harris, Chattahoochee, Talbot, Muscogee and Marion.

JAPANESE AVIATORS HALTED BY WEATHER

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 29.—(P)—After turning back on a Nome-to-Whitehorse hop, the Japanese around-the-world flight plane, Nippon, landed here at 1:30 p. m. (6:30 p. m., Atlanta time) today.

The plane had flown eastward as far as Tanacross after circling Fairbanks about three hours earlier, but turned back because of unfavorable flying conditions.

ADOPT RULE TO CUT EASY CLEMENCY

and parole board and the Governor's office supervise pardons and paroles, but that trial judges have the power to suspend sentences and grant probation.

In Accord, Says Rivers.

"We are in entire accord about this matter," Rivers said as spokesman for the group, "and are going to work to get the maximum good results from the suggested notification plan."

"The prison and parole board is already doing everything which this committee asked with one single exception—it is not notifying solicitors of contemplated favorable parole actions before they are made. It will do that in the future."

"Our office will notify solicitors in time for them and other court attaches to oppose pardon hearings, and we will notify the solicitors after favorable action is taken."

Ed A. Stephens, assistant solicitor general of the Atlanta circuit, accompanied the grand jury committee to Rivers' office and Clem Rainey, chairman; Vivian L. Stanley and Judge G. A. Johns, of the prison commission, sat in the conference.

Started by Jury.

Members of the Fulton county grand jury became interested in "easy clemency" when it appeared that scores of persons they were asked to reinstate had long records and would have been serving their sentences if they had not been pardoned, paroled or had their sentences suspended.

When this was learned by the jurors, they investigated and after several weeks' study, it was decided to appeal directly to Rivers and the prison and parole board to "correct what we believed to be a miscarriage of justice."

The conference was a result of its efforts. It is expected that the grand jury presentments expected tomorrow will deal specifically with suspended sentences and probations, which trial judges have a right to give offenders, and the co-operation of the judges with prosecuting officers will be asked, it was reported.

The grand jury will meet again this afternoon at 2 o'clock to study reports of various committees and to complete the writing of its presentments, Law said.

COOGLER OPPOSES INCOME TAX CHANGE

Clayton Representative Favors Reduction of General Property Levy.

JONESBORO, Ga., Aug. 29.—Representative O. J. Coogler, of Clayton county, today came out in opposition to any change in the state income tax law, scoring the effort to amend the law to prohibit deductions of federal taxes.

Coogler, in a letter to Governor Rivers, said he favored continuation of the income tax, reduction of the general property tax and, if necessary, a general sales tax of not more than 4 per cent.

The Clayton representative said he is not definitely opposed to diversion of highway funds.

Discussing the income tax situation, Coogler pointed out that the state needs funds to finance its security program from which poorer people are to benefit and said that raising the income tax would be "taxing one class to help another."

CEMENT, LIME STOLEN FROM BUILDING SITE

J. Gardner, of 458 Cleveland avenue, temporarily has suspended building operations on his new home at 1121 Portland avenue, S. E. He reported to police yesterday that five sacks of cement and 19 sacks of lime had been stolen from the building site.

Atlanta Authors To Be Honored At Party Given By Mrs. Eckford*By Sally Forth.

MRS. FLORENCE BURGESS ECKFORD, who belongs to the fourth estate because she wrote a chatty column in The Atlanta Constitution more than ten years ago under the name of Beverly Burgess, will give an aperitif today at the Georgian Terrace for Mrs. John Marsh and Mrs. Angus Perkerson. Mrs. Marsh, the world-renowned Margaret Mitchell, authored "Gone With the Wind," and Mrs. Perkerson, who wrote "Who Killed Aunt Maggie?", is the latest sensation Atlanta offers to the literary world.

The families of Mrs. Eckford and Mrs. Marsh have been friends for generations and Mrs. Perkerson gained the admiration of the hostess many years ago when Mrs. Eckford resided in Atlanta and wrote her column for The Constitution.

Newspaper women belonging to that elusive and intriguing profession, the fourth estate, and long-time friends have been invited to the party to greet the honor guests, who have gained their merited place in the intelligentia spotlight. Assisting Mrs. Eckford will be Mesdames Belle Robinson Leigh, Lee Lewman and James B. Nevin, and others invited are Mesdames N. W. Owensby, J. R. Trammell, L. B. Woodruff, Elizabeth Sage, Edward Van Winkle, Rosser Eby, John T. Oler, Ben Furse, Lois Peebles Cabanis, Rex Stafford, Misses Louise Mackay and Ellen Wolff.

ACTIVITIES in the Erle Cocke family have been geared to high speed during the past few weeks. Latest among happenings is their move yesterday from their home on Peachtree way to the Biltmore hotel, where they will be ensconced for the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Cocke and their daughter, Aline, and son, Erle Jr., have been on an extensive tour of the New England states and a visit to the World's Fair. While en route home they visited in historic Williamsburg.

Aline departed from the family tour at Wilmington, N. C., and is now visiting Margaret Darst at the home of her parents, Bishop and Mrs. Thomas Darst. Aline plans to stay in Carolina until time to return here for a hurried visit before leaving for Athens to resume her studies at the University of Georgia. Today, as his parents are establishing themselves in the new home, Erle Jr. is preparing to leave for Athens, where he, too, will resume his studies at the state university. Erle, you know, is leaving ahead of time for school to take part in football practice.

SENTIMENT figures prominently in the selection of the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church as the scene for the marriage of Bebe Young and Thornton Deas, whose engagement was

Serenity Is One of Greatest Factors In a Woman's Personality

Relax and Don't Worry—Good Rules for Beauty

By Ida Jean Kain.

Want to know why you never hear about the film stars' temperaments? They don't have any more because it's too expensive! No film company likes to sit around and wait for the star to get over a tantrum. Time lost is money lost!

And that's one reason temperaments have gone out of fashion. But Madeline Carroll, who is so beautiful she would probably be forgiven for temperamental displays, says there is an even more important reason—nervous outbursts take too great a toll of the star's looks!

"The stars who stay beautiful," she says, "cultivate a quality of serenity that saves them from a great deal of wear and tear. I think maybe the necessity for establishing serenity in their lives explains why it is that they stay beautiful."

Miss Carroll is convinced that serenity is the greatest factor in a woman's personality; that it not only helps a woman to retain her beauty, but that it can actually make the plain woman attractive. The harder a woman works and the greater the pressure she is under, the more necessary it becomes to take a little time to relax physically and mentally.

If you are terrifically hard-worked you may be inclined to think, "Oh, well . . . a film star has nothing to do but relax now and then." But that isn't so. Miss Carroll had just finished making a picture for Paramount when she stopped in New York on her way to England for a holiday. During the 10 weeks that she was working, she had two days off, was at the studio every morning by 7 o'clock, left at 6:30 in the evening, and most evenings rehearsed for two or three hours on a radio program.

It's just as hard for her to find a few minutes to relax as it is for anyone else. But she finds the time! She thinks the best way to relax is to lie flat on the back on the floor, with the feet propped up on a chair. This is to step up the circulation. Ten minutes a day of this, she says, works wonders.

She couldn't relax so quickly if she didn't have another rule: Never to worry about anything. She even believes that if women worry too much about their weight, they run a risk of becoming pre-occupied with food and want to eat all the time. Usually, worry makes a woman thin (if older), but under these conditions it might work the other way!

Swimming and walking are her exercise program, but she doesn't always have the time to swim. She never misses her evening walk.

"I eat a good dinner and if I didn't walk, I couldn't sleep, and I have to be in bed by 10 o'clock," she explained. "I don't walk fast, but I walk for about 45 minutes on the beach, remembering to pull up with the stomach muscles. It's as good exercise as one can find."

You might like to know this star's weight and measurements: Height, 5 feet 5 3/4 inches; weight, 120 pounds; bust, 34 3/4 inches; waist, 24 1/2 inches; hips, 35 inches.

Mickey Rooney's Stand-In Gets Role

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 29.—The The Claudette Colbert-Don Ameche picture repeat will be "Night of January 18." R-K-O-Radio is foolish to disagree with Garson Kanin over his lack of desire to direct "Ann of Windy Poplars." If ever a director knew what he was about, the lad who megaphoned "A Man to Remember," "The Great Man Votes" and "Bachelor Mother," certainly does. Metro has bought the rights to Oscar Wilde's "The Canterville Ghost," with the top roles going to Margaret Sullivan (who has settled her quarrel with the studio) and Jimmy Stewart. I wonder what will happen to all our favorite stars if the newly formed Screen Publicists' Guild orders its members to strike unless the producers agree to their demands. A star without publicity is like an election without newspapers.

"Brother Orchid" certainly is getting kicked around. Originally intended for Edward G. Robinson, it was passed on to James Cagney, then to John Garfield. And now is being mentioned for George Raft. . . . The most popular British actress, Grease, Fields, will portray Marie Dressler in the movie now titled "Marie-Bless 'Er." I can't tell you how relieved I am about this. When Elsa Maxwell was publicized as the new Marie Dressler, I had a horrid feeling she would be asked to impersonate the beloved actress in the screen biography. But that danger seems to be past.

A cute title for Commander Frank Heath's story—"The Sweetheart of Turret One"—now owned by Goldwyn. The picture will feature most of the players under contract to Sam-Andrea Leeds, Walter Brennan, Jon Hall, etc. . . . Robert Young is co-starred with Wallace Beery in "Twenty-Mule Team." Mrs. Paul Munie's acting comeback will be in "Mamma Raviola," for the same studio employing her husband. It is not often that a stand-in graduates to a part of his or her own. But Dick Paxton, stand-in for Mickey Rooney, is one of the lucky ones, and draws a role in "Fat and Furious." What is supposed to be the height of terror is the teaming of George Raft and Ann Sheridan in "Torrid Zone." Clarence Brown's first assignment in the Metro studios in London is "Ruined City," with Robert Donat and Margaret Sullivan in the leads.

Dame May Whitty, who did a swell job in "Night Must Fall," comes back to Hollywood for "Raffles," starring David Niven and Olivia De Havilland. Vivien Leigh returns to Hollywood with Laurence Olivier for "Rebecca," which starts with their arrival. As a follow-up to "Broadway Melody of 1940," Fred Astaire and Eleanor Powell appear in "Girl Crazy" from the George Gershwin musical success. John Garfield is quibbling at playing a ghost in "Four Wives." Edie Albert is an addition to the cast, the same—but for Garfield—as in "Four Daughters." . . .

She keeps her hair soft, luxuriant and entirely manageable, does Barbara Stanwyck, lovely star, who has the feminine lead in the Columbia picture, "Golden Boy."

Easy-to-Use, Effective Shampoo And a Worthwhile Brilliantine

By LILLIAN MAE.

You can't be too careful about the shampoo you use, if you really want a head of hair of which you'll be proud. A cake of soap should never be applied directly, though of course if you have a shampoo soap it is easy enough to melt it in the water and use in that manner.

But if you like a ready prepared liquid, I have just used one which I can recommend as easy to use and very effective. An attractive looking amber liquid, it is only necessary that it be poured over a head that has been slightly wet with warm water.

And another thing, it isn't necessary to use very much, for there is an immediate supply of soft, lovely lather when rubbing is begun. My experience is that this shampoo leaves a head feeling free from dirt and grease, and hair soft, luxuriant and entirely manageable. And though my hair tangles very easily, particularly during a shampoo, it was very easily combed out after using this liquid.

Rule of all Bidding Systems Is to Keep the Bidding Low

By Harold Sharpsteen.

When the opposition, in tournament play, announces it is using the Vanderbilt convention, and plenty of die-hards still cling to it, do not be misled into believing a one-club opening indicates a legitimate club-suit bid. Bidder may not possess a single club.

The bid is made to indicate 3-1-2 honor-tricks minimum, of which at least three are quick-tricks, but opening club bidder's suit might conceivably be hearts, or spades. Vanderbilt players open one club with holdings like:

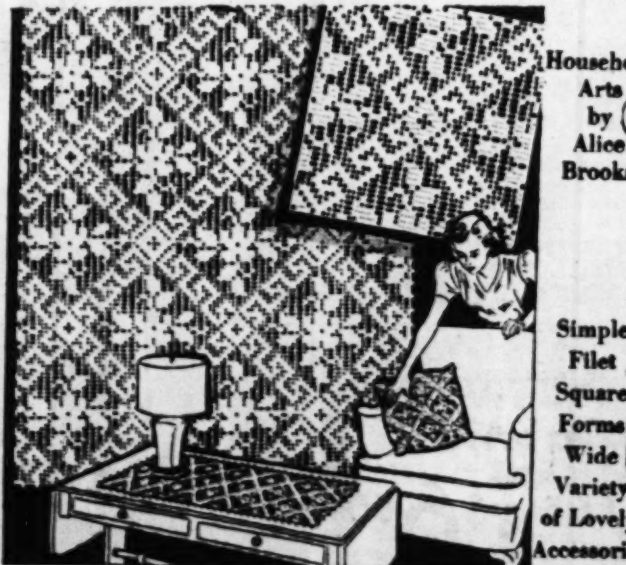

- (1) S-A K 10 9 8 7 D-Q 9 8 H-A Q 7 6 C—
- (2) S-A K 10 9 8 7 D-Q J 10 9 H-A J 10 8 6 5 C—
- (3) S-A K 10 9 8 7 D-Q J 10 9 H-K J 9 8 C-A Q 10 9

(4-1-2 H. T.—4 Q. T.) (5-1-2 plus H. T.—4-1-2 Q. T.)

KEEPING BIDDING LOW. Keeping the bidding low is the marching song of all bidding systems. The artificial club bid originated by Harold S. Vanderbilt, railroad executive and lawyer, at least, does that.

Proceeding on the assumption that five quick-tricks combined should produce game, opening club bidder promises at least three quick-tricks and his bid asks if partner holds at least two quick-tricks to insure game. Partner must answer "yes" or "no."

Nature Intended Use of All Your Teeth

By Dr. William Brady.

A while ago the conductor of this column, ever looking for trouble, undertook a round-up of tramps, in the endeavor to elevate their status by raising their self-respect.

Many individuals, we observed, with tramp instincts had led an edentulous existence not so much from false economy as from fear of the dental chair. Others who would lose no time in having some sort of denture installed to fill the gap left by loss of a front tooth, try to get by with back teeth missing, in the belief that they can conceal the mutilation by keeping their face straight and their mouth closed.

Back teeth are more important in mastication than front teeth. Use of not some but ALL of the teeth as nature intended is essential for preservation of the health and beauty of the teeth. For example, pyorrhea (interstitial gingivitis, Rigg's disease) almost inevitably develops on the unused side of the mouth where missing teeth lead to the habit of one-sided mastication.

A tooth you can use in your business of living is worth a thousand dollars to anyone except a genuine tramp, even though a first-class tooth costs only $100 installed.

If everyone were compelled to undergo at least annual inspection, cleaning or whatever prophylaxis or treatment the teeth might require, this shameful neglect of teeth and tramp-like toothlessness would scarcely occur among intelligent people. It is only when the teeth have been neglected over a long period that tedious, difficult and sometimes painful dental treatment or operations become necessary. One with the sense to make regular visits to his dentist rarely has to endure pain or serious discomfort in the dental chair.

The problem of filling a gap left by the loss of a tooth seems greatly simplified by a recent development of American dentistry, the "peg" tooth. The dentist inserts in the jaw bone under the gap a vitallium screw (vitallium is a metal alloy of strength and without irritating properties—it is much used in bone surgery for these reasons). Then, caps the head of the screw with a porcelain-faced tooth. Thus a useful tooth is pegged into the gap, without disturbing the tooth on either side of the empty space, as was necessary to insert a bridge heretofore.

Whether your dentist is prepared to install a peg tooth or advises filling the gap with a bridge, remember there are more important considerations than personal appearance which should guide you. A functionally efficient denture will help to maintain good mastication, which is first aid to digestion. Normal mastication helps to maintain good nutrition of gums and teeth and prevent the encroachment of pyorrhea, and the progress of dental caries. Finally, proper daily use of all the teeth favors the ideal state of nutrition, general physical fitness, good spirits, etc.

Q. Does cream have the same constituents as milk? A. Yes, but in different proportions. Cream is richer in fat, the exact degree depending upon both the method and the extent of separation. The average composition of single cream is: Water, 72.5 per cent; protein, 2.9 per cent; fat, 20 per cent; lactose, 4 per cent; and mineral matter (ash), 0.6 per cent. The average milk contains 87.1 per cent water; 3.4 per cent protein; 3.9 per cent fat; 4.9 per cent lactose; 7 per cent ash.

Religion Is First Essential for Staying on Top of Wheel

By Caroline Chatfield.

One of the wisest, best-beloved and most widely read of newspaper women told me that when she was employed to write a woman's page feature, her big boss said to her: "Now stay off religion and politics and you'll get along all right. Anything you have to say on either of these subjects will offend somebody's sensibilities."

Well, I've observed that she doesn't hesitate to recommend the Ten Commandments to her readers as the perfect law, nor hesitate to remind them that while anybody can break them, nobody can escape punishment for breaking them.

Then let's talk about religion in the big sense and see if we can't discover why it is the first essential for staying on top of the wheel. Children just naturally behave better when they know papa and mama are in the background keeping an eye on them. Call it fear, or what you will, they are better for that restraining influence, to say nothing of the source of comfort for their young souls as they grow. So it is with us children of a larger growth.

As for us, Jews and Gentiles, we were brought up on the textbook that leaves nothing unsaid about our duty to God and our fellowmen and, quibble as we may over the nonessential, that textbook contains all we need to live by, including the basic laws on which our civil laws are built. Try as we may we can't outwit them.

The textbook is crammed with choice literature, poetry, graphic stories, searching analysis of the

My Day: Glamour and How To Achieve It

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, Monday.—It seems as though we had seen quite a number of young people these past few days. Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Williams brought their four sons and Mr. and Mrs. Mark McCloskey brought their three daughters for a picnic. The young people exercised most of the time that they were here. When they were not exercising they were all eating.

Action is the natural outlet for youth and the best of us may like to be active for short periods of time, but only the really young want to feel themselves in action practically all their waking moments. This was emphasized yesterday when we had three young people with us who were playing or eating, when they were not in the pool.

I have just been sent a book, "Glamour and How to Achieve It," by Sali Lobel, which purports to tell you how to be glamorous and make your home so. I am sure it is a very important book, but I haven't had time to go through much of it. I did, however, discover that one of the things one must not do is to lie in bed in the morning after waking up. If you like to day-dream, you should do so in our bath, and you should take that a half hour before eating or two hours after eating. Of course, you should do many exercises and you should eat with common sense. By the time I have remembered everything in the book, I think I shall acquire all the lines it tells you must be kept from furrowing your brow.

My grandmother looked much younger than I do at my age. I wonder how she managed to do it without all this good advice? Yet, we all want youth and I am sure I shall read this book with care and try to follow its dictates.

I have read three one-act plays for children. If you have any girls in your family who never realized that woman's position in the U. S. A. was once upon a time not what it is today, give them "Enter Women," by Olivia Howard Dunbar. It may bore them a little, but it will be good education. "Fires of Valley Forge," by Harold Harper, will emphasize revolutionary history. Just at the present time the most valuable play is "A Salute to the Fourth," by Elizabeth McFadden. The children will realize that intolerance is nothing new and that 100 per cent Americans, who are that and nothing else, have been with us for a long while. They will also realize that, on the other side, there have always been just and tolerant people who could appreciate worth, regardless of race or creed—and nowadays that is valuable.

Old-Fashioned Puddings Serve Many Purposes

By SALLY SAVER.

"It's rice pudding for dinner again!" shouted the little English boy, Christopher Robin. Many another boy or girl would shout it too if the pudding were made of sticky rice, which always is a favorite with children and is a good energy food, cooked with milk and eggs and sweetened just enough, having as a final touch a fruit sauce, perhaps.

Old-fashioned puddings serve many useful purposes, one of the important ones being that most of them use generous quantities of milk and eggs which in one way of getting a part of the daily quota of milk taken without coaxing.

The rice pudding in the photograph is called blushing rice pudding and is made in this way: 1-2 cup rice 1-2 cup sugar 2 cups milk 2 egg yolks 1-2 teaspoon 1 cup whipping vanilla cream 1-2 teaspoon salt Red jelly

Cook rice slowly in the salt and milk. Add sugar at the end of the cooking period. Add well beaten egg yolks and mix well. Beat occasionally as rice cooks. When cold, fold in whipped cream. Add vanilla. Pour into individual molds and chill. Unmold and serve topped with a spoonful of currant or raspberry jelly. Garnish with walnut meats, if desired. It may be served with a fruit sauce. (six servings.)

CHOCOLATE RICE PUDDING. 2 cups cooked cocoa 1-2 cup rice 1-2 teaspoon salt 2 cups milk 1-2 teaspoon 4 tablespoons vanilla Heat the milk in a double boiler; add the rice and cocoa, mixed with the sugar and salt. Cook until thick. Add the vanilla. Chill thoroughly. Serve with cream or with a custard sauce. Six servings.

OLD FASHIONED RICE 1 cup rice 4 tablespoons sugar brown 1 quart milk 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg 1-2 teaspoon salt 1-2 cup raisins

Add rice to other ingredients and pour into a greased baking dish. Bake for three hours in a slow oven stirring several times during the first hour. The mixture never should boil. Serves six.

I have made no reference to washing the rice. The uncooked, packaged rice needs no washing. Many persons do not know that before the Civil War rice cultivation in South Carolina round about Charleston was extensive and important. From South Carolina it spread to other southeastern states. The war ruined the rice industry in South Carolina, but many old South Carolina families still cook rice every day. It is served, as in the old days, with every dinner.

Rice is one of the cheapest sources of energy. Questions regarding foods will be answered gladly by Sally Saver. Write or phone. Care The Constitution or Wal. 6365.

Dr. Thomas M. Elliot, pastor of the Rockmart First Methodist, performed the ceremony in the presence of the families and a few friends, and music was presented by Miss Ila Jolly, pianist, and Stanley Powell, violinist.

Mrs. Leon Edgar Rhodes, of Griffin, sister of the groom, was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Louise Platt, of Gainesville, and Miss Mildred Norvell, of Atlanta, cousins of the bride. They were gowned alike in models of mousseline de soie, fashioned with square necks, puffed sleeves and full skirts. The matron of honor wore blue and carried Biarritz roses and blue delphinium. Bridesmaids wore pink, and their bouquet were Johanna Hill roses, tied with white and pink satin ribbons.

Wright Campbell, of East Point, was Mr. Campbell's best man.

Entering with her brother, Allan Roberts, who gave her in marriage, the bride wore a wedding dress fashioned of heavy cream-colored material and featuring a fragile lace yoke mellowed with age to a deep cream, extending to form a saucy pepum. The lace was repeated on the puffed sleeves and edged the becoming neckline. Her veil fell from a coronet of orange blossoms, and her bouquet was bride's roses, valley lilies and swainswona.

Mrs. J. F. Roberts entertained at an informal reception following the ceremony. Mrs. F. A. Lock-hurst Jr., of Macon, cousin of the bride, kept the bride's book, and later in the evening Mr. Campbell and his bride left for a trip to Florida, the bride traveling in a navy ensemble with accessories to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will reside in Cedartown upon their return from the wedding trip.

CRIME TEARS ON

Hetty Tells Cornelia She Saw Yvette
Meet a Man In Ivy Arbor 3 a. m.

By CAROLYN WELLS.

SYNOPSIS.
At a cocktail party in Amy Crosby's home in Manhattan, Craig Madison introduces himself to Yvette Verne, a new movie star, after he overhears her quarreling violently with Billy Gomez, a man unknown to him. The actress soon calms down; and when Craig invites her to spend the week end at the estate of his Uncle Harley Madison, in New Plymouth, Long Island, she becomes interested. She tells Craig she has heard of his uncle, who is regarded as an eccentric philanthropist. Craig says that his uncle needs more sympathy, and that if she will be an understanding friend to the wealthy man it will help matters. Miss Verne thereupon accepts the invitation. Craig and his cousin, Tom Sheldon, both orphans, were brought up by their Uncle Harley, a widower. He lives with his sister, Cornelia, who helps him in his business; Hetty Garson, a spoiled housekeeper, and Ames, his secretary. Harley recently got the idea to rejuvenate the shabby town of New Plymouth, and contemplates leaving two-thirds of his fortune to it. His plan to improve the town out of a common fund is opposed by those who want to be glorified by their donations. He refrains from abandoning the project because that would throw Craig, the architect working on building plans, out of business. Harley wants to know the reason for the attitude of the traitors to this cause. At the week-end party Miss Verne captivates everybody, especially Harley, much to the annoyance of Anita Boyce, a widow, who hopes to marry him. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT IX.

The party had been a nervous strain, and sleep came quickly to the tired hostess, but as was her custom she awakened early, and at 6 o'clock in the morning, she opened her eyes to see Hetty sitting beside her bed.

"For Heaven's sake! what's the matter?" exclaimed Cornelia sitting up straight, while Hetty threw a wrap round her shoulders.

"What has happened to Harley?"

"Nothing at all. Now, calm down, Miss Cornelia, your brother is all right, far I know. It's something else I have to tell you."

"Go ahead, then."

"Bein' wakeful about 3 o'clock, I seen Miss Verne a-meetin' of a man in the Ivy Arbor."

"At three in the morning?"

"Yes, Miss Verne sneak out of the house, and scoot into the Ivy Arbor and when she come out again there was a man with her, who has been waitin' for her there."

"Who was the man?"

"That I don't know. I don't think it was any of our men here in the house, but I couldn't say for sure."

"I don't believe Miss Verne did that. It would be too dark for you to see her anyway."

"I did see her."

"Go back to bed, Hetty, and forget it. I'll ask Miss Verne about it in the morning, and she'll tell me what happened, if anything."

Hetty went off, rather miffed, but feeling sure that when she spoke to Miss Verne in the morning, Miss Cornelia would sing a different tune.

Cornelia was troubled. She had just begun to take a liking to the girl, and if her antecedents were all they ought to be, Cornelia was rather in favor of Craig's marrying her. She had been pleasantly surprised at Yvette's innate good breeding and refinement.

This story of Yvette going out at three, to meet a man in the Ivy Arbor, was as ludicrous as it was incredible. There was no sense in a New York man coming up here to see her clandestinely, for the girl knew he would be welcomed as a proper guest.

She could scarce wait for a late enough hour to disturb Yvette, but at 8 o'clock, she sent Aggie to ask Miss Verne, if Miss Madison might pay her a call. The response was cordial, and in negligence and cap, Cornelia visited her guest.

Yvette had risen, and was robed in an elaborate mona, and waiting in her boudoir.

"Miss Verne," Cornelia said, "did you go downstairs and outdoors at 3 o'clock, to meet somebody in the Ivy Arbor?"

Yvette looked at her surprised, but entirely self-possessed.

"No, Miss Madison, I did not."

"You did not leave your rooms after you bade me goodnight and came up to bed?"

"I did not."

"Thank you, I am sorry to have troubled you in the matter."

Monday morning, in response to a message from his uncle, Craig Madison went into the study. He had a vague premonition of trouble.

He was greeted by a kindly "Hello, my boy," and seated himself at the broad desk, opposite Harley Madison.

"How much do you know about my dealings with the village people who are working with me in regard to fixing up the general appearance of New Plymouth?"

"Not an awful lot, Uncle Harley, but I've picked up bits here and there from Ames, and Aunt Cornelia, and Aunt Corbelle. As you know, I'd like to know when and if you want me to do that, you'll tell me so."

"Right. Well, Craig, the project is not running smoothly—not at all. In fact, its course is becoming so difficult, I am tempted to step out of it all."

"What? That would bring about a civil war, or something, wouldn't it?"

"Perhaps so. But there is another reason why I think of dropping the plan. I'm going to tell it to you, right now, and you won't like it at all."

Craig stared.

"You're not going to put me in your place, I hope?"

"No; on the contrary, I want to put myself in your place."

Like a flash, Craig knew! It came to him, intuitively, a sudden revelation, the knowledge of a blow that must be met.

"Go on, sir," he said.

His uncle gazed at him admiringly. "You're wonderfully quick," he said; "I believe you know what I'm going to say. Yes, it is about Yvette."

"And what about her?"

Craig tried to speak lightly, but didn't quite succeed.

"I want to marry her. I have fallen in love with her, not only with her beauty and grace, but with her fine character and noble nature. I loved my wife, but with a gentle, tender affection, compared with which my love for Yvette is a devotion, a passion that can scarce be met."

"I cannot feel it honorable to tell her of this love without telling you first. Is she pledged to you, in any way? Am I infringing on your rights?"

Craig said nothing for a few moments. Then:

"Uncle Harley, it is fine of you to tell me of this matter. You have as much right as I, and more, to ask Yvette to be your wife. I do love her, deeply, but I have not told her so, nor have I given her any definite reason to think it. The situation is a bit complex, but were it a thousand times more so, I would willingly relinquish my hopes in your favor. Go in and win! I will be the first to congratulate you, and that in all sincerity."

"You're a brick, Craig, and I accept your offer as frankly as it is made. But we are not the final court of appeal. It would not be at all surprising if Yvette preferred your youthful charms to my more mature advantages. So keep your hopes, and I will keep mine. We will say, a fair field and no favor, and may the best man win."

"I agree, heartily. Can we arrange matters before she leaves us?"

"When is she going?"

"Tomorrow, I think. But if she is—er—interested, she might be persuaded to stay a few days longer."

"I shall find out about her feelings today. As you know, I'm impetuous, and I want to put my courage to the test to win or lose it all."

"Shall you go on with the village project, if Yvette accepts your proposal?"

"No. That would be the reason I told you of for dropping the whole plan. I'm pretty sure she would not care to live here, and if we live elsewhere I should lose all interest in the place."

"And Aunt Cornelia?"

"I know my sister well enough to feel sure that she will gladly consent to anything that means my life's happiness. I'll give her this house, if she wants to stay here, or arrange a home for her wherever she wants it."

"Of course, you will, Uncle. I know everything will fit into place and, in my opinion, Yvette already loves you."

"Yes," and Harley Madison looked complacent. "I too, have a notion that way."

"I'd like to see the looks on the faces of those village fathers when you tell them the news."

"I shall not like to see it! I have ample reason to believe their looks will clearly indicate battle, murder and sudden death!"

"Uncle, don't say such things."

"I never spoke a truer word," Harley Madison said, almost solemnly.

"When is the next meeting?"

"Wednesday night. But if my lady doesn't smile on my suit, there will be nothing to disturb further the already irate patrons."

His mind and heart filled with various seething emotions, Craig went away to think things out by himself.

Craig Madison was not a sycophant or one inclined to agree to his uncle's wishes unquestioningly because of benefits past, present or to come. He was honestly and deeply grateful for the kindness shown him by his uncle all his life, and though startled by this amazing situation, he did not for one instant hesitate as to his response.

And now, even while he realized how much more Harley Madison could offer, he had a faint hope, which he tried to stifle, that perhaps wealth and importance might not mean everything to Yvette Verne.

Meanwhile, another confab, of dire import and perhaps grave consequences was going on in the living room.

Laura and George Lee and Anita and Gifford Hale had gone to play golf.

Craig and his uncle were in the study, and Ames busy in his office, so that Tom Sheldon was the only one at loose ends, and when he wandered into the room to seek company, he came upon a strange quartette.

Hetty and her husband Elkanah were opposite Yvette and Miss Cornelia, and the four faces showed signs of anger and bewilderment.

As Tom came in, he heard Hetty say:

"I'm plain-spoken, I am, but I'm nobody's fool. When I see a thing, I see it, and when I say I saw a thing, I did see it."

"Hetty's got mighty good eyesight," Elkanah observed, "and I'd like to say she's right."

As Cornelia saw Tom she said: "Come in. Perhaps you can help us. Yvette, are you willing Tom should join our discussion?"

"Certainly," the girl said.

"And what's it all about?" Sheldon asked, cheerily.
